Kinney's Rise To Fame Began With Texas A & M

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Two years ago when Texas A&M came to Nebraska's Memorial Stadium, Husker sophomore Jeff Kinney was a second string I-back. And he had achieved that ranking only a few days earlier.

When the Aggies left Memorial Stadium that September afternoon, Jeff Kinney was the Huskers' No. 1 I-back and he went from there to become Sophomore Back of the Year in the Big Eight Conference.

Since then Kinney has moved steadily up the NU rushing chart to rank sixth on the chart of modern-day Husker ball carriers (since 1950).

Saturday afternoon, Texas A&M returns for a 1:30 p.m. kickoff in a Band Day affair at Memorial Stadium as Nebraska puts its No. 1 national ranking and a 21-game unbeaten streak on the line against the Aggies, who are 1-1 for the season.

With 1,487 career yards entering Saturday's Texas A&M game, the McCook athlete needs only 28 yards to supplant Dick Davis as the fifth leading NU rusher and needs only 61 to overhaul Bob Smith, who now stands fourth on the Nebraska chart.

But had it not been for injuries early in that 1969 season, Kinney might have found himself battling Johnny Rodgers for the flanker spot instead of piling up chunks of yardage.

Coaches' Capsules

Nebraska's Bob Devaney — "We're expecting a heckuva tough game. They played us tough the last time and we'd better be ready this time."

Texas A&M's Gene Stallings — "We consider it a privilege to play great football teams and we feel that Nebraska deserves its No. 1 rating."

Kinney, who came out of McCook High School as a quarterback, started his sophomore year in 1969 as a flanker. But a knee injury in fall camp shelved Joe Orduna for the season and Husker coaches began looking around for someone to fill the void at I-back.

The names they settled on a week before the opening game with Southern Cal were Frank Vactor, Jeff Hughes and Jeff Kinney with fullback Mike Geen being mentioned as a possibility should that trio not pan out.

Vactor won the starting berth in that opener, carrying the ball eight times for 56 yards while Kinney was handed the football only four times and picked up 17 yards, 12 of them coming on a touchdown run.

Following the week, Texas A & M came to town for a regionally-television affair and again Vactor was the starter, but after picking up six yards on four carries, he was injured.

The Huskers trooped to the dressing room that day with a 14-0 halftime lead, but head coach Bob Devaney was fully aware that he had now lost his top two I-backs and he was not happy with the way the Husker running game had been going.

When he virtually eliminated the pass from the NU attack in the second half so his Huskers could work on that running game, the Nebraska fans were not happy in settling for a 14-0 win and no touchdowns in the second half.

But later in the season that strategic move began to pay off as the NU ground game got steadily better.

Against Texas A & M that afternoon, Kinney carried the ball 24 times for 78 yards and after the game in comparing that workhorse load with his previous week's work of four carries for 17 yards, Kinney allowed, "I'm not nearly as tired today as I was a week ago. I think winning probably has something to do with that."

The Huskers had lost the previous week. With Kinney as the No. - I-back the rest of the 1969 season, sharing those duties with Orduna last year, and back as No. 1 this season, the Huskers have compiled a 22-1 record.

For Jeff Kinney it all started with Texas A & M.

GM Breakup Urged

Harris Runs For President . . . AS 'NEW POPULIST'

Washington (UPI) — Oklahoma's Sen. Fred R. Harris formally announced his candidacy for president Friday and called for the breakup of General Motors as part of his "New Populist" campaign.

"I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president of the United States," Harris told cheering supporters at a televised news conference. "I intend to try and turn this country around before it's too late."

New Coalition

Considered a long-shot at best, Harris, 40, the son of a sharecropper, hopes to put together a new coalition of the young, the aged, blacks, Chicanos, Indians, women, blue collar workers and farmers.

"I believe that a president can call this country back to the greatness that is in us," he said. "I mean to try."

Harris came to the Senate seven years ago as one of its youngest members. He was a member of the presidential commission on civil disorder appointed after the urban riots of the middle 1960s. He was cochairman of Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 presidential campaign and was elected Democratic national chairman in 1969.

Harris was accompanied to the Senate caucus room where John F. Kennedy launched his campaign by his Comanche Indian wife, LaDonna, his three children — Kathryn, 21, Byron, 14, and Laura, 10 — and House Speaker Carl Albert, a fellow Oklahoman.

Albert made it clear to reporters later that he was not endorsing Harris.

In response to a question about what he would do to help the ailing economy, Harris said, "The President only talked about competition."

Real Competition

"I think we really need competition in order to have a better distribution of income in our society and to have the real competition on which our system is based."

He added, "I think you could, right now, under the law, without any change in the law, break up General Motors, which I think you should, into five companies."

"You'd begin immediately to have some competition," he said. "Prices would begin to come down."

Harris said he would take his campaign to the elderly, to wounded Vietnam veterans in hospitals, into prisons, and on the streets.

He added, "We can have a better distribution of income. We can have a better distribution of power. We can have a return to idealism in foreign policy."

Rich Don't Pay Fair Share

"My father has less than a high school education," Harris said. He works twice as hard as most Americans. He knows he pays more than his fair share of taxes, while a lot of rich people do not. He is a proud man . . . He is worse off economically than he has been since the depression. Everything he buys costs more, but his own real income is less."

Harris is not a wealthy man, either, and he would not be staking all in the spring primaries except for two factors — he has the backing of a rich benefactor and he has nowhere else to go.

His backer is Herbert Allen Jr., a wealthy New York investment banker and sometime Humphrey supporter. His political future, after seven years in the Senate, looked bleak.

Harris is a lawyer and holds a Phi Beta Kappa key from the University of Oklahoma. He was Oklahoma's youngest state senator. After one year filling a vacancy in the U.S. Senate, he was elected by defeating Bud Wilkinson, the Oklahoma football coach who had molded national champion Sooners teams.

Residents Of Nursing Home Led Out Of Burning Building

By CHARLIE HARPSTER
Star Staff Writer

Thirty-eight residents of Westview Home, operated by Lancaster County as a home for the aged, were led through a dillie to the safety of a nearby garage Friday night after a fire began in the attic of the home.

The residents, mostly over 65 years old, huddled under blankets while firemen from Lincoln, Malcolm and Raymond fought the smoke and flames for nearly an hour.

The fire apparently started in electrical wiring about 9:30 p.m., according to Earle Trabert, Lancaster County Welfare Director.

Trabert said a city bus was called to take the patients to Lancaster Manor for the night.

Two Lincoln brothers, who ran out of gas while returning from a hunting trip and stopped to use the telephone, helped carry at least seven patients to safety.

Brothers Help

Barrie Gordon, 24, of 1453 Metzger Circle, and his brother Donald, 25, of 1901 K, said as they approached the building they could see the smoke coming from the attic window. Without thinking about what they were doing, Barrie said, they began carrying out the patients.

Westview home is located northwest of the training center of the Nebraska Highway Patrol, off Highway 34.

Dave Grubb, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Dean Grubb, said he tried to put out the fire with an extinguisher but "saw nothing but smoke."

He said his fiance, Denise Drake, 20, first noticed the flames.

The home is run by Mr. and Mrs. G. Dean Grubb, Dave's parents.

Dave said that while he, his father and his fiance tried unsuccessfully to fight the fire with extinguishers, Mrs. Grubb called the fire department in Lincoln.

Unable To Walk

At that time, Dave said, the Gordon brothers arrived and began evacuating the patients, many of them unable to walk.

Dave said that while the patients were being evacuated, his 2½-month old puppy, Patches, ran back into the nursing home. He said he later returned and found the puppy safe.

Denise said Lincoln firemen arrived about 10 minutes after her mother called.

Fire Chief Dallas Johnson said the damage to the nursing home was "more than considerable." He said cause of the fire and the extent of the damage had not been officially determined.

The third-floor attic was filled with tables, chairs, and other furniture. Nearly everything in the room was charred by the fire. About an inch of water was on the floor around the point where the fire began.

District Fire Chief Wendell Malcolm said five fire trucks from Lincoln Air Park and one from headquarters were sent to the fire. Johnson said the units from Malcolm and Raymond were needed to keep the Lincoln trucks filled with water, since the home had no access to fireplugs.

Jury Convicts Craig Of Rape

After some eleven hours of actual deliberation, a Lancaster District Court jury of seven women and five men found an 18-year-old Lincoln man guilty of rape in connection with a June 4 incident involving a 12-year-old girl.

Benjamin Craig of 1920 Washington, had pleaded innocent to the charge which was filed in connection with an incident at the Lincoln Heights Park near the Belmont Swimming Pool.

Lancaster District Judge Herbert Ronin deferred sentencing Craig pending a motion for a new trial. He was released on bond.

Conviction of rape, under Nebraska law, carries a penalty of from three to 50 years imprisonment.

According to Police Inspector Robert Sawdon at the time of the incident, four young men including Craig had been swimming in the nude at the Belmont pool in the early morning hours of June 4 prior to the alleged rape incident.

One of the young men was charged with disturbing the peace and fined $20.

Two others were charged with felony counts of indecent exposure involving a 13-year-old girl, who had gone to the park with the 12-year-old who was allegedly raped. The girls said they had gone to the area to get a shoe left there earlier.

However the felony charges were amended to misdemeanor charges of indecent exposure. One pleaded guilty and one pleaded nolo contendere to the amended charges. Each was fined $50.

The young politico said although the TARs are already gearing up for the 1972 elections, organization leaders are also stressing the group's tradition of non-political activities.

The Lincoln club for example, is planning service-oriented activities in the community, such as lending efforts to charity drives.

And although it hopes to draw GOP office-holders as speakers to future meetings, it is also planning to invite non-political speakers. A fall hayride is also in the works.

"We're going to try more of the learning thing (and social activities) than cramming politics down their throats," he said.

"Kids can get active in campaigns," he said.

Major Hearings Delayed

Washington — Faced with the likelihood of opening its term on Oct. 4 with only seven sitting justices, the Supreme Court postponed scheduled hearings on capital punishment and several other major issues. Prior to the retirements of Justices Hugo L. Black and John M. Harlan, the court had scheduled a heavy load of crucial appeals for this fall. (Another story on Page 2.)

Clean Car Engine Developed

. . . AUTO MAKERS SAID IT COULD NOT BE DONE BY 1976

before the Detroit Economic Club Thursday night, said an engine had passed tests within the "very strict standards of the clean air act."

Even Ford Chairman Henry Ford II was caught by surprise. "I never heard of it," he said of the development described by Nixon, James M. Roche and Lynn M. Townsend, chairman respectively of General Motors and Chrysler, said they were equally in the dark.

Ford, along with General Motors and Chrysler, told EPA in public hearings last May that they were pessimistic about meeting the law's requirements. It specifies that 1975 models reduce hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions 90% compared with 1970 levels, and that 1976 models also cut nitrogen dioxide emissions 90% compared with 1971 models.

Friday's announcement indicated the goal might be met after all.

Ford, however, issued a statement saying that despite its promising potential "there is virtually no chance that the engine could be mass produced and certified for 1976."

The engine is an internal combustion type used in all cars, EPA said. It uses 91 octane unleaded gasoline and cuts exhaust emissions through use of fuel injection, exhaust gas recirculation and a catalytic muffler, Ruckelshaus said.

4-Wheel Drive

The test vehicle has a manual, four-wheel drive transmission. An EPA spokesman said use of the two-wheel drive automatic transmission used in most cars should reduce pollutants even more, enough to make up for the somewhat increased emissions that would result in a version with more than the 72 horsepower of the prototype.

Although auto industry spokesmen emphasized last May that such sharp control of emissions would seriously impair auto performance in gasoline mileage, the EPA said the prototype performed as well as a regular jeep and achieved similar gas mileage.

Ford is building another prototype with an automatic transmission for experimental use by the U.S. Postal Service, EPA said. Texaco is scheduled to deliver two additional prototypes in November.

Over sharp industry objections, Congress last year wrote the 90% reductions into law as an amendment to the clean air act. The controversial auto provision was sponsored by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

2-China Plan In Trouble

United Nations, N.Y. —

The United States won another test Friday on its two-Chinas plan, but the vote in the U.N. General Assembly appeared to indicate trouble ahead.

The test was on an Albanian move to bar putting on the agenda an item intended as a vehicle for the so-called "dual representation" formula to seat Red China while permitting the Chinese Nationalists to remain.

The United States won by a vote of 65 to 47 with 15 abstaining. This was a normal U.N. standard, but actually it was unusually close for a procedural question of putting an item on the agenda of the assembly.

After the vote U.S. Ambassador George Bush said he was "tremendously pleased," but he added that "we are not taking anything for granted."

An analysis of the roll call and the statements made by a number of delegates in the 130 nation assembly made it clear that many of them who voted for the U.S. item were opponents or potential opponents of the two-Chinas plan.

The mood of the assembly was reflected in part by the fact that no member asked for a recorded vote on the question of inscribing a rival item — backed by Albania and 17 other countries — which would give Peking its "lawful rights" by expelling the Taiwan delegation.

The United States made no effort to have the assembly reverse a 12-9 vote in the steering committee Wednesday rejecting a U.S. request for a simultaneous debate on the two rival plans.

Black and John Marshall Harlan.

But comments of Democratic leaders like Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, George McGovern of South Dakota and Fred Harris of Oklahoma indicated Poff's selection could touch off a fight in the Senate.

Two earlier attempts by Nixon to place southern conservatives on the court, Judges Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., and G. Harrold Carswell, were rebuffed by the Senate.

However, his nominations of Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun, both strict constitutional constructionists of the type favored by the President, were confirmed by the Senate without opposition.

Nixon said in Detroit that he is looking for justices with a judicial philosophy similar to Burger's and Blackmun's and he mentioned as possible nominees legislators "with great experience on the House and Senate Judiciary Committees."

Poff, 47, a 10-term member of the House and the second-ranking Republican on its Judiciary Committee, fits that description both counts. Regarded as a "law and order" conservative, he helped steer Nixon's crime control legislation through the House last year.

Rep. Emanuel Cellier, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, and Rep. William M. McCulloch, R-Oio., the senior GOP member, sent Nixon a telegram calling Poff exceptionally well qualified for the Supreme Court.

This brought dismay to some civil rights groups who already have begun attacking Poff's votes against all the civil rights bills passed in the 1960s. Cellier and McCulloch were the chief House sponsors of the measures.

Their endorsement of Poff for the Supreme Court failed to stir a similar response from leaders of the civil rights bloc in the Senate.

McGovern, a candidate for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, said Poff "has consistently worked against implementation of the 14th Equal Rights Amendment" and he would oppose his nomination.

NEA Seeks Court Order For Increase

Washington (UPI) — The National Education Association (NEA), acting in behalf of nearly two million public school teachers, asked U.S. District Court here Friday to declare that most teacher salary increases due this fall "were in effect prior to Aug. 15 and may lawfully be paid."

The NEA suit against the Cost of Living Council and the Office of Emergency Preparedness, which is monitoring the freeze, charged that the government had deprived teachers of their Fifth Amendment rights to due process of law.

The NEA asked for a permanent injunction to prevent the government from taking legal action to prevent payment of teacher salary increases and for a court order that the government "publish clear regulations giving notice that teacher salary increases may be lawfully paid."

The NEA, whose members include 1.1 million school teachers and administrators across the country, did not seek exemption of teachers from the freeze and did not challenge its constitutionality, as it had hinted earlier it might.

Neer Fails In Effort To Reduce Sentence

... Veterinarian's Request Follows Strode Conviction

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Federal District Judge Warren Urbom rejected Friday the request of Dr. Bradley P. Neer for a reduction of sentence in connection with the Nebraska Welfare Department fraud case.

The Maryland veterinarian pleaded guilty in June to six counts of a 13-count indictment alleging he conspired with former Nebraska Welfare Director Harold J. Strode to defraud the state of $88,500 in payments for consulting services never performed.

Neer is incarcerated at the Federal Correctional Institution at Sandstone, Minn., on a five-year sentence imposed by Judge Urbom with the condition he serve a minimum of one year before becoming eligible for parole.

Neer's appearance before Judge Urbom followed overnight in the same courtroom the conviction of Strode on 13 counts by a jury in the same fraud case.

Judge Urbom has scheduled sentencing proceedings on Oct. 14 for Strode, who presently is free under $25,000 bond.

In his appearance Friday, Neer asked that his sentence be changed so he could put his veterinary medicine training to use and help support his family.

"I have made my peace with God and at 40 years of age I am too old to start over," said Neer, a former employee of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Neer said his family "is in a financial crisis" and that he understood that chances for going on a work-release program would be enhanced if the judge would place him on probation after serving a portion of his term.

Assistant U.S. Atty. William Schaphorst said the government would not resist any change of sentence but had made no promises to Neer of reward for cooperating as a key witness at Strode's trial this week.

Judge Urbom said he had taken into consideration Neer's cooperative attitude and admission of guilt when the original sentence was pronounced.

Federal parole authorities, the judge noted in declining to modify Neer's sentence, are in a better position than the court to know when Neer should be released.

In absence of other relief, Neer's attorney, Richard P. Nelson of Lincoln, asked the one-year minimum sentence be shortened.

But Judge Urbom said the one-year minimum was "reflective of the magnitude of the crime" and nothing has occurred to indicate otherwise since sentence was pronounced.

The high school junior's hair complies with the dress code except for extension of sideburns lower than the bottom of his ear, according to the plaintiff's petition.

No Contest Plea Entered By Allee, Former Banker

Falls City (P) — Former Bank of Salem President John Allee, 29, Friday entered a plea of no contest to a charge of embezzlement from the now-defunct bank.

Allee earlier had pleaded innocent to two counts, but a charge of misappropriation of funds was dropped Friday.

The bank was closed by the State Banking Dept. earlier this year because of irregularities. The bank later was declared insolvent and depositors have been paid by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Neer Fails In Effort To Reduce Sentence

... Veterinarian's Request Follows Strode Conviction

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer
Federal District Judge Warren Urbom rejected Friday the request of Dr. Bradley P. Neer for a reduction of sentence in connection with the Nebraska Welfare Department fraud case.

The Maryland veterinarian pleaded guilty in June to six counts of a 13-count indictment alleging he conspired with former Nebraska Welfare Director Harold J. Strode to defraud the state of $88,500 in payments for consulting services never performed.

Neer is incarcerated at the Federal Correctional Institution at Sandstone, Minn., on a five-year sentence imposed by Judge Urbom with the condition he serve a minimum of one year before becoming eligible for parole.

Neer's appearance before Judge Urbom followed overnight in the same courtroom the conviction of Strode on 13 counts by a jury in the same fraud case.

Judge Urbom has scheduled sentencing proceedings on Oct. 14 for Strode, who presently is free under $25,000 bond.

In his appearance Friday, Neer asked that his sentence be changed so he could put his veterinary medicine training to use and help support his family.

"I have made my peace with God and at 40 years of age I am too old to start over," said Neer, a former employee of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Neer said his family "is in a financial crisis" and that he understood that chances for going on a work-release program would be enhanced if the judge would place him on probation after serving a portion of his term.

Assistant U.S. Atty. William Schaphorst said the government would not resist any change of sentence but had made no promises to Neer or reward for cooperating as a key witness at Strode's trial this week.

Judge Urbom said he had taken into consideration Neer's cooperative attitude and admission of guilt when the original sentence was pronounced.

Federal parole authorities, the judge noted in declining to modify Neer's sentence, are in a better position than the court to know when Neer should be released.

In absence of other relief, Neer's attorney, Richard P. Nelson of Lincoln, asked the one-year minimum sentence be shortened.

But Judge Urbom said the one-year minimum was "reflective of the magnitude of the crime" and nothing has occurred to indicate otherwise since sentence was pronounced.

The high school junior's hair complies with the dress code except for extension of sideburns lower than the bottom of his ear, according to the plaintiff's petition.

Judge Urbom granted the temporary restraining order pending further hearing in the case on Sept. 30.

Sideburned Student To Stay On School's Student Council

Federal District Judge Warren Urbom issued Friday a temporary order restraining Oakland-Craig High School officials from forcing 16-year-old Roger C. Troupe from his seat on the school's student council.

The restraining order resulted from a suit filed by Mrs. Millie Troupe of Craig on behalf of her son against the Oakland-Craig school board and school superintendent.

According to the suit's allegations, school officials are

No Contest Plea Entered By Allee, Former Banker

Falls City (P) — Former Bank of Salem President John Allee, 51, Friday entered a plea of no contest to a charge of embezzlement from the now-defunct bank.

Richardson County District Court Judge William Colwell accepted the plea and set sentencing for Oct. 14. Allee remains free on $5,000 bond.

Allee earlier had pleaded innocent to two counts, but a charge of misappropriation of funds was dropped Friday.

The bank was closed by the State Banking Dept. earlier this year because of irregularities. The bank later was declared insolvent and depositors have been paid by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Survivors include his parents and two brothers.

Funeral services will be Saturday.

The next hearing on the rate increase request will be Tuesday in Alliance.

Ferris complained about what he said was poor service to rural customers and high cost of getting telephone service in rural areas.

Ferris said he believed a rate increase might be justified in some areas of service, such as one-party lines. But he said there should not be an increase in rates for multi-party lines.

He also complained about overhead telephone lines which he said can easily be knocked down by farm machinery.

State Sen. Thomas Kennedy of Newman Grove complained about poor service from Northwestern Bell operators.

He said the rate increase would not be objectionable if service is comparably improved.

The next hearing on the rate increase request will be Tuesday in Alliance.

Miss Martin Is Chosen Ak Dairy Queen

Omaha — Linda Martin of Arlington, was named Ak-Sar-Ben Dairy Queen at the Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Show which opened Friday. Miss Martin, 16, reigned over the opening performance of the Ak-Sar-Ben World Championship Rodeo Friday night.

The 1971 queen earned the right to compete for the Ak-Sar-Ben title as Queen of the district show at Fremont. This marks the fourth straight year that the Ak-Sar-Ben Queen has come from the Fremont district. Marleen Timmerman of Papillion was the 1968 winner, Sandra Armbrust of Elkhorn in 1969, and Laurie Kavan of Morse Bluff last year.

But the decision to take such sweeping action followed a dramatic coup for British counter-intelligence early this month.

Mao's Successor III, Reports Say

(c) Washington Star

Hong Kong — The cause of the abnormal situation in China is the serious illness of Lin Piao, the deputy and designated successor to Mao Tse-Tung, according to intelligence reports. Lin, who is also defense minister, is not expected to recover.

His departure from the Chinese scene, which became known to leaders in Peking about Sept. 11, has touched off still-continuing political turmoil. The questions of control of the armed forces and the succession to Mao, 77, are involved in the power struggle now underway.

The sources of the intelligence reports could not be made public. Experienced observers in Hong Kong considered the sources to be authentic.

Lin is 64. He has a history of ill health, including tuberculosis.

105 Russian Spies Barred By Britain

©The New York Times

By ANTHONY LEWIS

London — Britain Friday ordered 90 Soviet representatives to leave the country because of espionage activities and barred 15 more who are temporarily away from returning.

The Soviet Union will not be allowed to replace those expelled or excluded. And if anyone is similarly expelled in the future, his place must also remain unfilled.

Silence On Details

The suggestion of sabotage was especially surprising. British sources would say nothing more on this point, or on the whereabouts, name or history of the KGB officer.

It was learned that one piece of information brought by the defector was a Soviet plan for infiltration of the Royal Navy. A particular target was the secret naval research establishment at Portland, on the south coast, from which secrets were stolen between 1955 and 1961 by a spy ring headed by a Soviet agent.

The letters published by the Foreign Office were two from Sir Alec to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. Both dealt with Soviet intelligence operations here. Neither has had any reply.

Sir Alec's letters included language that would have to be called undiplomatic in their directness and even sarcasm.

Gromyko's failure to answer Sir Alec's letters was taken very badly in the Foreign Office — doubtless worse than the Soviets expected. It was as if the Soviet government claimed a natural right to spy, one man said, and thought it no else's business.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Very little new is found in President Nixon's answers to questions posed to him before the Economic Club of Detroit the past week. The role of the government in the private economy appears to be about the same as it has figured to be in recent weeks.

The present wage, rent and price freeze continues, of course, to the middle of November. But what happens after that? It is now agreed by all concerned, and confirmed by the President, that the lid will not be completely taken off.

There is further agreement on the broad outline of what might be adopted in place of the present freeze. The program after November is now referred to as a thaw, with controls over prices and wages but not so rigid controls. In some circles, the post-November program is being referred to as "incomes policy."

That term is supposed to imply something that the American people don't quite understand but if the new program comes out as expected, it will not be difficult to understand, regardless of the name given it.

That new program is expected to allow for hikes in wages and prices commensurate with the increase in productivity. This, however, presents some problems because productivity is a little hard to measure in a lot of the nation's business. In general, productivity might be defined as efficiency.

If the nation's working force can produce 5 per cent more goods and services during a year than it did before and with the same number of people, then productivity has gone up 5 per cent. The new program is likely to say, then, that wages can go up 5 per cent.

Whether prices will be tied to productivity or not is not getting much discussion but one would assume that price increases would not be tied to productivity, but rather, to costs and to profits. In theory, industry would not need a price increase to make up for a 5 per cent wage hike if productivity had also gone up 5 per cent.

Still undetermined is what the government will do about interest rates. The Nixon administration would obviously like to leave interest outside the controls but it may find that from a practical political point of view, some lid has to be put on such rates.

With the extensive use of credit these days, a lot of business and industry could effectively achieve a price increase by raising consumer interest rates. On the other hand, the centralized accounting and credit procedures now so popular would deny to many retailers the chance of increasing profits through interest rates since those retailers do not carry the credit of their own customers.

Congress has already demonstrated that in the tax field it will be more generous in the lower and middle income levels than the administration had hoped and a little more tight-listed in the higher and corporate income levels. The average person will find no argument with Congress on that score and the action will prove to be a political asset for the President even though he was not looking for it.

Government spending under the post-November program is supposed to come in for greater scrutiny. The thinking is that budgetary guidelines will be adopted that cut the level of federal spending and bring the federal government into balance.

If the federal budget is ever brought into balance, it will be the miracle of the post-war era. There are endless predictions of a balance but they never materialize at the end of the fiscal year.

Acceptance of whatever comes after November will rest squarely with the American people. If the new program appears to be too heavily weighed against the working man and too lenient on big business and high income groups, then it will never stand the test of time.

There isn't any question that President Nixon knows that he must come forth with a program that is both economically sound and philosophically in tune with most Americans. The atmosphere for the new program will not be the same as that enjoyed when the initial freeze was imposed last August.

Soviets Now Planning Visits To Numerous Foreign Ports

LONDON — The Kremlin appears to be in a hurry to mend its international fences. Communist Party General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev is visiting Yugoslavia and will visit France in late October. Premier Alexei Kosygin is to visit Canada on Oct. 16 and Algeria, Denmark and Norway in December. President Nikolai Podgorny is going to Paris with Brezhnev and then on to North Vietnam.

Nor is that all. Kosygin may well pay a visit to the U.N. General Assembly where Russia plans to put its world disarmament conference call on the agenda. The Soviet premier might well use the occasion to talk to President Nixon before the latter's China trip.

The Russians apparently believe the time has come to engage in globetrotting diplomacy. The question is: Why now? The London Times claims that "The announcement of the projected Nixon-Mao meeting can be seen as the chief single event that has given the Soviet leaders their sudden attack of wanderlust."

The scope of the Russian visits is the most expansive since the international junkets of Nikita Khrushchev. The current collective leadership has been remarkably restrained in its travels. But then no trip by a Soviet leader could ever match the bizarre spectacle of Khrushchev's travels across America in September, 1959. Nikita's antics, under the full blaze of the TV lights, left mouths agape from coast to coast.

By way of contrast, Brezhnev has not visited any western country since he became party leader. Soviet expert Leonard Schapiro, who calls Brezhnev a "drab and mediocre general secretary," told Editorial Research Reports that only now, after packing the Polit-

They Had A Dream

The year 1916 marked a milestone in the growing popularity of the horseless carriage. For the first time, more than a million motorcars were produced in a single year in America.

You could buy a Hupmobile or a Hudson, a Ford, Chevrolet or Packard, a Nash, Essex or Henderson or a Winton or Enger. Hundreds of companies were engaged in this new business and they turned out autos to suit anyone's fancy.

In 1916, the Patterson-Greenfield was added to this growing list. The Patterson-Greenfield was manufactured in Greenfield, Ohio, by C. R. Patterson & Sons, an old-line carriage firm headed by Fred Patterson, probably the only black auto-maker in the country.

The first Patterson-Greenfield rolled out of the company plant on North Washington Street on Sept. 23, 1916. It was a solidly built, low-priced family car selling for $850.

The Patterson-Greenfield was equipped with all the latest gadgetry from "full floating rear axle to electric starting and lighting system."

In Patterson's words, his car was built "to meet the requirements of that class of users who, though properly able to expend twice the amount, yet feel that a machine should not engross a disproportionate share of expenditure to the exclusion of proper provision for home and comfort."

Patterson's firm was founded by his father, C. R. Patterson, in 1865. The elder Patterson, a blacksmith, had come to Greenfield from Virginia and originally ran a buggy repair shop.

He prospered and before long began manufacturing both buggies and wagons. The Patterson buggy works was one of Greenfield's most important industries, employing 15 men who turned out about 500 vehicles a year at prices ranging from $120 to $150 each.

The firm continued to build buggies until 1910 when the elder Patterson died but it was a dying industry and Fred soon recognized this.

He built about 30 Patterson-Greenfield automobiles but a shortage of capital kept him from adopting production line techniques, and the fierce competition of emerging giants such as Ford ended the venture in 1919.

The firm then turned to the manufacture of vehicle bodies. C. R. Patterson & Sons built custom bodies for ice, milk, furniture, bakery and other specialized trucks as well as bodies for buses and hearses.

Patterson-built school buses were used all over Ohio, as far east as West Virginia and west to the Mississippi. The firm also built the bus bodies for Cincinnati's transit system.

Fred, who became a wealthy man, died in 1932. Six years later, in the face of stiffening competition, the firm his father founded was dissolved.

anything on wheels from buckboards to phaetons, surreys, school wagons and funeral hearses. Among the 28 different buggy models built by the firm, one, a doctor's buggy, was perhaps the most popular. It was widely used throughout the South and the Midwest.

Patterson had two sons, Fred, and Sam who died young. Raised in Greenfield, Fred in 1888 was the first Negro graduate of the Greenfield High School.

From there, he went to Ohio State University where he majored in classical studies. Instead of joining his father's firm after graduation, however, he took a job as a history teacher in Louisville, Ky. He taught there until 1897 when he returned to Greenfield to help his aging father.

The firm continued to build buggies until 1910 when the elder Patterson died but it was

Alaskan Oil Pipeline Awaits Decision

MORTON DENIED THAT HE EVER CONSIDERED RESIGNING AND IN A LETTER TO EDITORS, HE SPOKE OF THE "FINE WORKING RELATIONSHIP WITH THE PRESIDENT" THAT HE CONTINUED TO HAVE AS SECRETARY OF INTERIOR. THE RESIGNATION REPORT CAUSED A FLAP, WITH DIRECTOR OF COMMUNICATIONS HERBERT KLEIN GETTING INTO THE ACT.

Yet Morton has an independence of mind that has often been shown. His temperament — salty, down to earth, with a strong sense of humor — matches his massive physique.

In the appointments, Morton went contrary to the trend in the Nixon administration, which has been to downgrade career officers and replace them with political appointees. The new under-secretary, replacing Fred J. Russell who had been the principal manipulator for the White House, is William T. Pocora a career officer who moved up from director of the geological survey to the No. 2 post.

The big test is still to come. Alaska is the last frontier, a storehouse of great natural beauty, of animals some of which are threatened with extinction and at the same time a treasure trove of oil, minerals, riches still unclaimed.

Will this treasure be so exploited as to reduce the last frontier to a shambles? The answer does not rest entirely with Morton. A bill expected to pass Congress would give the natives — Aleuts, Eskimos, Indians — a billion dollars and up to 50 million acres of land. Never has such a bonanza been held out and the exploiters are already on the starting line. As the initial land grabs, the scandals of Teapot Dome and innumerable lesser peregrinations have shown, Interior is strewn with political booby traps. Morton is cautiously trying to find his way through the mine fields.

Watching China-Watchers

If Russia is a "riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma," as Winston Churchill described her in 1939, Russia pales in comparison to mainland China. China is something else again.

All governments play the secrecy game in the conduct of their affairs, but none seemingly so inscrutably as China. So immeasurable in people, area and potential is China that the world hangs on in hopes of a clue to her inner workings and is understandably on edge when it cannot comprehend.

Which brings us to the subject of China-watchers, once thought to be members of a very small, select elite, but now exposed as belonging to a non-exclusive fraternity numbering in the millions. There are the journalists, of course, and the diplomats, the old war-time comrades of Chou and the literary friends of Mao, university professors and those unnamed experts who monitor radio broadcasts, businessmen who engage in international trade, tourists who can decipher wall posters and the countless number of little folk who read about what all the above think and can form their own opinions. China-watching is a fad.

But we believe that China is still such a closed society and the Chinese leaders so adept at molding thought and leading the world on that they have almost everybody, if not completely fooled, at least as far away from the truth as they want them to be. So we'll accept the consensus of opinion that the "ominous signs" seen in China the past two weeks or so mean that after the power struggle, Chen Po-la is even farther out and Chou has consolidated his power and everything is back to normal.

But we are still worried about President Nixon's impending visit to Peking. We hope the planes are flying in China that day and the soldiers are on leave, that the foreign medical experts have all gone home and that Chou doesn't have another very important meeting to attend.

Auto Insurance Faults Could Be Corrected But Lobbyists Against 'No-Fault' Insurance

WASHINGTON — The Transportation Department recently spent two years and $2 million to learn what any motorist could have told them for two cents — that the automobile insurance system in this country is an unmitigated mess.

Car owners have been complaining for years that auto insurance costs too much and often, is hard to get at any price. Thousands have found, to their dismay, the insurance system in this country is an unmitigated mess.

Hundreds have lost their automobiles, their health, their income — all without compensation. Other hundreds have come out of accidents unscathed, yet have collected generous payments for their pain and suffering.

Sen. Phil Hart, D-Mich., who has been investigating the insurance industry for five years, has been inundated with letters from irate motorists and accident victims who feel they have been shortchanged by the system.

A Maryland man, for example, told how his aged wife was struck while crossing the street to have been "5 per cent the driver's insurance company to her home. She was judged by "negligent" and was denied any payment.

A 76-year-old Brooklyn woman lost her husband in a car accident seven years ago and has yet to collect a penny of the benefits due her.

An insurance agent from Columbus, Ohio, wrote that he had "been in this auto insurance business for 33 years, and any insurance man who says we are doing a good job is either ignorant, incompetent or a liar and most likely the latter."

How does such an expensive, inhumane and unfair system continue to operate year after year without change? The blunt answer: Too many people are making too much money on the grief of others.

The "injury industry" — the insurance companies, agents, adjustors and lawyers — have been raking in billions of dollars with the auto insurance system just the way it is.

The system's worst fault, most experts agree, is the "fault" principle upon which automobile liability insurance is based. Essentially, this means that in order for anyone to collect on an accident, someone must be shown to be "at fault." If it's the other driver, you collect. If you are at fault — or, in most states, even partially at fault — you collect absolutely nothing. Unless you have collision and medical insurance, you repair your car and pay your medical bills out of your own pocket.

All that your liability insurance covers is the other fellow's damages in the event you are held responsible for an accident. While this may appear to be based on good old American justice (letting the "guilty" party pay), a closer look shows the "fault" system to be good only for the underwriters and lawyers. Here are some specifics:

The necessity to prove "fault" requires lawsuits, which have clogged our already crowded courts to the breaking point. Federal judges spent 11 percent and state judges 20 percent of their time helping to decide who struck whom.

The backlog of cases continues to grow while unpaid medical bills pile up.

Insurance is hard for many people to obtain, cancellations are rampant, and premium costs are skyrocketing.

Proving "fault" requires jury trials. Insurance companies, therefore, prefer to sell liability insurance to those persons who will impress a jury favorably.

This has evolved a highly arbitrary customer selection system that involves much more than a spotless traffic record. Drivers are paying higher premiums and having their policies cancelled because of their jobs, marital status, sex, living habits, and "morals."

Seriously injured accident victims receive woefully inadequate compensation while those with trivial injuries are sometimes overpaid.

Precious little of the enormous premiums motorists pay is ever returned to them. DOT figures show that only 42 percent of all liability premiums are paid back in benefits. Much of the liability premium dollar goes to the system's "middlemen." Insurance agents alone received some $1.3 billion in sales commissions in 1970.

There's a way out of the insurance morass. It's called "no-fault" auto insurance.

Progress toward a complete no-fault system, however, has been blocked by an intensive lobbying campaign. Across the country, trial lawyers, insurance agents, adjustors, and most insurance companies — all of whom stand to lose billions of dollars if no-fault goes through — have risen up to obstruct it in whatever way they can.

That term is supposed to imply something that the American people don't quite understand but if the new program comes out as expected, it will not be difficult to understand, regardless of the name given.

That new program is expected to allow for hikes in wages and prices commensurate with the increase in productivity. This, however, presents some problems because productivity is a little hard to measure in a lot of the nation's business. In general, productivity might be defined as efficiency.

If the nation's working force can produce 5 per cent more goods and services during a year than it did before and with the same number of people, then productivity has gone up 5 per cent. The new program is likely to say, then, that wages can go up 5 per cent.

Whether prices will be tied to productivity or not is not getting much discussion but one would assume that price increases would not be tied to productivity, but rather, to costs and to profits. In theory, industry would not need a price increase to make up for a 5 per cent wage hike if productivity had also gone up 5 per cent.

Still undetermined is what the government will do about interest rates. The Nixon administration would obviously like to leave interest outside the controls but it may find that from a practical political point of view, some lid has to be put on such rates.

With the extensive use of credit these days, a lot of business and industry could effectively achieve a price increase by raising consumer interest rates. On the other hand, the centralized accounting and credit procedures now so popular would deny to many retailers the chance of increasing profits through interest rates since those retailers do not carry the credit of their own customers.

Congress has already demonstrated that in the tax field it will be more generous in the lower and middle income levels than the administration had hoped and a little more tight-fisted in the higher and corporate income levels. The average person will find no argument with Congress on that score and the action will prove to be a political asset for the President even though he was not looking for it.

Government spending under the post-November program is supposed to come in for greater scrutiny. The thinking is that budgetary guidelines will be adopted that cut the level of federal spending and bring the federal government into balance.

If the federal budget is ever brought into balance, it will be the miracle of the post-war era. There are endless predictions of a balance but they never materialize at the end of the fiscal year.

Acceptance of whatever comes after November will rest squarely with the American people. If the new program appears to be too heavily weighed against the working man and too lenient on big business and high income groups, then it will never stand the test of time.

There isn't any question that President Nixon knows that he must come forth with a program that is both economically sound and philosophically in tune with most Americans. The atmosphere for the new program will not be the same as that enjoyed when the initial freeze was imposed last August.

Soviets Now Planning Visits To Numerous Foreign Ports

LONDON — The Kremlin appears to be in a hurry to mend its international fences. Communist Party General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev is visiting Yugoslavia and will visit France in late October. Premier Alexei Kosygin is to visit Canada on Oct. 16 and Algeria, Denmark and Norway in December. President Nikolai Podgorny is going to Paris with Brezhnev and then on to North Vietnam.

Nor is that all. Kosygin may well pay a visit to the U.N. General Assembly where Russia plans to put its world disarmament conference call on the agenda. The Soviet premier might well use the occasion to talk to President Nixon before the latter's China trip.

The Russians apparently believe the time has come to engage in globetrotting diplomacy. The question is: Why now? The London Times claims that "The announcement of the projected Nixon-Mao meeting can be seen as the chief single event that has given the Soviet leaders their sudden attack of wanderlust."

The scope of the Russian visits is the most expansive since the international junkets of Nikita Khrushchev. The current collective leadership has been remarkably restrained in its travels. But then no trip by a Soviet leader could ever match the bizarre spectacle of Khrushchev's travels across America in September, 1959. Nikita's antics, under the full blaze of the TV lights, left mouths agape from coast to coast.

By way of contrast, Brezhnev has not visited any western country since he became party leader. Soviet expert Leonard Schapiro, who calls Brezhnev a "dab and mediocre general secretary," told Editorial Research Reports that only now, after packing the Polit-

Streets Quiet, Conditions Worse

In 1968 the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, headed by Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois, found that one major cause of the ghetto disorders of the '60s was the shameful life in the cities and it predicted that further racial polarization and central city bankruptcy would result unless radical changes were made.

Today, some three years later, a National Urban Coalition task force finds that conditions in the cities haven't gotten better, but worse. Assessing progress since the Kerner Commission report, the task force could only find that "the state of mind in the streets is some cause for hope." The anger of city residents appears to be greater now than in 1968, but it "no longer seems to be the helpless kind that can express itself only by smashing and burning . . . We found people banding together, speaking the language of brotherhood and reaching for the levers of power."

But, the new Harris-Lindsay report finds that "housing is still the national scandal it was then. Schools are more . . . turbulent.

The rates of crime and unemployment and disease and heroin addiction are higher. And, with few exceptions, the relations between minority communities and the police are just as hostile."

The findings of the new report will not be disputed, nor were the Kerner Commission's. But the impact should be about the same. Because, as the urban coalition points out, "the expressions of sympathy and concern that the Kerner report elicited from a large number of those, who privately or publicly, wield the power that governs America, did not signify that they were willing to take the drastic action to make American cities liveable again."

This lack of coming to grips with the problems of the urban ghettos should not lose its meaning in Nebraska. If America can't cure this open, festering sore, what can it do with its other ailments?

And we wonder, too, the streets being quieter now, but conditions no better and probably worse, how much longer they will remain quiet. The state of mind in the streets is a fragile thing.

Watching China-Watchers

If Russia is a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma," as Winston Churchill described her in 1939, Russia pales in comparison to mainland China. China is something else again.

All governments play the secrecy game in the conduct of their affairs, but none seemingly so inscrutably as China. So immense in people, area and potential is China that the world hangs on in hopes of a clue to her inner workings and is understandably on edge when it cannot comprehend.

Which brings us to the subject of China-watchers, once thought to be members of a very small, select elite, but now exposed as belonging to a non-exclusive fraternity numbering in the millions. There are the journalists, of course, and the diplomats, the old war-time comrades of Chou and the literary friends of Mao, university professors and those unnamed experts who monitor radio broadcasts, businessmen who engage in international trade, tourists who can decipher wall posters and the countless number of little folk who read about what all the above think and can form their own opinions. China-watching is a fad.

But we believe that China is still such a closed society and the Chinese leaders so adept at molding thought and leading the world on that they have almost everybody, if not completely fooled, at least as far away from the truth as they want them to be. So we'll accept the consensus of opinion that the "ominous signs" seen in China the past two weeks or so mean that after the power struggle, Chen Po-ta is even farther out and Chou has consolidated his power and everything is back to normal.

But we are still worried about President Nixon's impending visit to Peking. We hope the planes are flying in China that day and the soldiers are on leave, that the foreign medical experts have all gone home and that Chou doesn't have another very important meeting to attend.

Auto Insurance Faults Could Be Corrected But Lobbyists Against 'No-Fault' Insurance

WASHINGTON — The Transportation Department recently spent two years and $2 million to learn what any motorist could have told them for two cents — that the automobile insurance system in this country is an unmitigated mess.

Car owners have been complaining for years that auto insurance costs too much and, often, is hard to get at any price. Thousands have found, to their dismay, the insurance man who says we are doing a good job is either ignorant, incompetent, or a liar and most likely the latter.

Hundreds have lost their automobiles, their health, their income — all without compensation. Other hundreds have come out of accidents unscathed, yet have collected generous payments for their "pain and suffering."

Sen. Phil Hart, D-Mich., who has been investigating the insurance industry for five years, has been inundated with letters from irate motorists and accident victims who feel they have been shortchanged by the grief of others.

The "injury industry" — the insurance companies, agents, adjustors and lawyers — have been raking in billions of dollars with the auto insurance system just the way it is.

The system's worst fault, most experts agree, is the "fault" principle upon which automobile liability insurance is based. Essentially, this means that in order for anyone to collect on an accident, someone must be shown to be "at fault." If it's the other driver, you collect. If you are at fault — or, in most states, even partially at fault — you collect absolutely nothing. Unless you have collision and medical insurance, you repair your car and pay your medical bills out of your own pocket.

All that your liability insurance covers is the other fellow's damages in the event you are held responsible for an accident. While this may appear to be based on good old American justice (letting the "guilty" party pay), a closer look shows the "fault" system to be good only for the underwriters and lawyers. Here are some specifics:

The necessity to prove "fault" requires lawsuits, which have clogged our already crowded courts to the breaking point. Federal judges spent 11 percent and state judges 20 percent of their time helping to decide who struck whom.

The backlog of cases continues to grow while unpaid medical bills pile up.

Insurance is hard for many people to obtain, cancellations are rampant, and premium costs are skyrocketing.

Proving "fault" requires jury trials. Insurance companies, therefore, prefer to sell liability insurance to those persons who

FRED PATTERSON

They Had A Dream

The year 1916 marked a milestone in the growing popularity of the horseless carriage. For the first time, more than a million motorcars were produced in a single year in America.

You could buy a Hupmobile or a Hudson, a Ford, Chevrolet or Packard, a Nash, Essex or Henderson or a Winton or Enger. Hundreds of companies were engaged in this new business and they turned out autos to suit anyone's fancy.

In 1916, the Patterson-Greenfield was added to this growing list. The Patterson-Greenfield was manufactured in Greenfield, Ohio, by C. R. Patterson & Sons, an old-line carriage firm headed by Fred Patterson, probably the only black auto-maker in the country.

The first Patterson-Greenfield rolled out of the company plant on North Washington Street on Sept. 23, 1916. It was a solidly built, low-priced family car selling for $850.

The Patterson-Greenfield was equipped with all the latest gadgetry from "full floating rear axle to electric starting and lighting system."

In Patterson's words, his car was built "to meet the requirements of that class of users who, though properly able to expend twice the amount, yet feel that a machine should not engross a disproportionate share of expenditure to the exclusion of proper provision for home and comfort."

Patterson's firm was founded by his father, C. R. Patterson, in 1865. The elder Patterson, a blacksmith, had come to Greenfield from Virginia and originally ran a buggy repair shop.

He prospered and before long began manufacturing both buggies and wagons. The Patterson buggy works was one of Greenfield's most important industries, employing 15 men who turned out about 500 vehicles a year at prices ranging from $120 to $150 each.

Alaskan Oil Pipeline Awaits Decision

WASHINGTON — Within the vast domain of the Department of Interior — 70,000 employees — are the sensitive issues that send conservationists charging into the courts and even on occasion into the streets. The new head man at Interior, Rogers C. B. Morton, is coming to a decision that will infuriate either the conservationists or the powerful oil interests that have been so cozy with the Nixon administration.

With a deadline at the end of two months, Morton must issue an environmental finding on the proposed oil pipeline in Alaska. Built across the frozen tundra where moose are the principal residents, it is a crucial decision. Already conservationists have filed three suits in federal courts to prevent construction of the 878-mile line.

It seems hardly credible that Morton could rule against the oil companies that have been impatiently waiting with vast stores of steel pipe at Prudhoe Bay on the North Slope. The need for new sources of oil in view of the nation's growing shortage of energy and the rise in price initiated by oil-producing countries provide objective reasons for a favorable finding.

Yet Morton has an independent mind that has often been shown. His temperament — salty, down to earth, with a strong sense of humor — matches his massive physique.

He showed his independence in a confrontation with the White House shortly after he took office at the end of January. Morton had found Interior in a shambles following the removal of Walter J. Hickel, who showed little interest in administration, and less ability, as he pursued his personal overweening ambitions. The new secretary wanted to make his own choices for the positions to be filled in his department.

But he was confronted by Office of Management and Budget Director George P. Schultz with a list of names that, according to Schultz, the President wanted appointed.

These were, for the most part, political payoffs. Indebted to the White House, they would have reinforced the Nixon staffers in exercising remote control over policy decisions in the sprawling empire of Interior. Morton said no, he had his own list.

This was hardly credible that the last Democrat to serve as secretary of interior, Stewart Udall, who writes a newspaper column with Jeff Stansbury. They went so far as to say that Morton had served notice on Schultz after a second confrontation that the President would get his resignation in 4 hours if he could not make his own independent choices.

"I don't like what they're doing to our dollar."

Meadow Lane
Park Valley Heights
Skyline Terrace

This particular time of year might very appropriately be labeled the "sportsman's season" because of the variety of activities that can be pursued by athletic enthusiasts. For example, the seasons of two of the most popular spectator sports — football and baseball — overlap during the months of September and October, much to the delight of fans. For those who would rather participate than spectate, the hunting season is about to open; and it would be hard to top the fun available to those who take part in a game of tennis or golf on one of these crisp autumn days.

While we're thinking about sports — and golf in particular — we'd like to mention a gathering which took place Thursday evening at the Legion Club. At that time, the Colonial Golf Course Women's Golf Association held its awards banquet, and among those who received awards were many suburban residents.

The competition began in May, and the final play-off occurred last Sunday. The ladies who participated were organized into five leagues, with five or six teams in each league. On Thursday evening, a trophy was presented to the members of the team that finished first in each league. In addition, two individual awards were presented.

Receiving the "Outstanding Player" trophy was Mrs. Sylvester Schroer of Meadow Lane; and we understand that Mrs. Edward Peterson tied with Mrs. Schroer for that particular honor. Mrs. Ernie Griffin was named the "Most Improved Player."

Team awards were presented to Mrs. Merle Mindling, Mrs. Edward Peterson, Mrs. Darwyn Hoover and Mrs. Dee Perry; Mrs. Lorraine Casper, Mrs. David Orr, Mrs. Bernice Miller and Mrs. Jerry Eastin; Miss Harvine Kirchhoff, Miss Pam Koch, Miss Sue Busing and Miss Karne Overbeck; Mrs. Donald Brumman, Mrs. Gerald McAuliffe, Mrs. Chester Rung and Mrs. Burton Leavitt; and Miss Diane Conley, Miss Sandra Malone, Miss Melvin Hansen and Miss Marilyn Mackevicius.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zitek of Staplehurst make announcement this morning of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary, to Chris Simonsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Simonsen of Utica.

Mr. Simonsen is associated with American Stores.

TOWN TALK

At mid-week we mentioned that the Cotillion Club had a dinner and business meeting planned for Wednesday evening at the University Club. As always the major portion of the business meeting was devoted to the election of new members.

This year the election results added nine new member couples to the Cotillion roster — The group includes Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Tiemann, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rasmussen, Mr. and Mrs. Congdon Paulson, Mr. and Mrs. David Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Gibbs, Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Hoppe, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Chesen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dobson and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Endacott.

And, of course, there are some new officers — They are Mr. and Mrs. John Desmond, president, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Campbell, secretary-treasurer.

The calendar for the weekend of Oct. 1, and Oct. 2, is filled with dinner dances and it would be easy to guess that most of them are dancing club parties. Before we begin telling which club is dining and dancing where, we have some guests who will be in town during the current weekend.

The visitors are Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lock of Alberta, Canada, who are the house guests of Mr. Lock's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Hamilton. Mr. and Mrs. Lock, who stopped off in Lincoln enroute home from Dallas, Tex., also will visit Mr. Lock's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Lock.

The dancing club festivities begin on Friday evening, Oct. 1 when the members of the Colonial Dancing Club will be making merry in the Garden Room at Hotel Lincoln.

On the following evening — after the Cornhusker-Utah game — the Saturday Night Club members will dine and dance at the Radisson-Cornhusker. And that same evening will be the party planned by the Terpsichorean Club members who will do their dining and dancing at Hotel Lincoln.

The Main Topic -- "Cottey College"

Planning one's future presents problems even for adults. It is something of an exhausting ordeal for high school girls who at this very moment have college on their minds. There are decisions, decisions, decisions — Which college? That's the weighty question.

Well, Miss Anne Simpson of Cottey College, Nevada, Mo., was in town this week to help some of those young ladies make up their minds — to go to Cottey, naturally.

Miss Simpson, herself a graduate of Cottey which is a two-year school, received her de-

in the suburban areas

Presiding at the evening's festivities was club president, Mrs. Robert Settell; and Richard Watson presented the trophies. Entertainment was provided by a ladies barbershop quartet.

A short weekend trip was on the agenda recently for Park Valley Heights residents, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Linneman. Accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Linneman during their travels was Mrs. Linneman's father, Herman Wilmes of Maryville, Mo., who had been a guest at the Linneman home since the first part of August.

The travelers' destination was St. Joseph, Mo., where they were entertained at the home of Mrs. Linneman's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wilmes and family.

On the way back to Nebraska, Mr. and Mrs. Linneman returned Mr. Wilmes to his home in Maryville.

Looking forward to the arrival of guests later today are Skyline Terrace residents, Mr. and Mrs. James Merton and children, Jill, Terry and Margo. Planning to spend an extended weekend visit in Lincoln are Mr. Merton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Merton, who make their home in Pierre, S.D.

Sunday will be an especially festive day at the Merton home, due to the fact that two family members will celebrate their birthdays. Miss Jill Merton and her grandmother, Mrs. Merton, will both become a year older on Sunday; and they will receive congratulations at a family dinner to be held at the Merton home on that particular afternoon.

A Friday Wedding

At a 7:30 o'clock ceremony on Friday evening, Sept. 24, the marriage of Miss Winifred Thoren, daughter of the Rev. Arnold V. Thoren and the late Mrs. Thoren, to John E. Elmborg of Blue Rapids, Kan., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Elmborg of Lindsborg, Kan., took place at the First Lutheran Church. The service was solemnized by the bride's father.

The attendants, including Mrs. Clara Thoren Rottman who was her sister's matron of honor; bridesmaids Mrs. Arnold V. Thoren, Jr., of Boone, Iowa, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Earl Hopper of Clayton, Mo., and junior bridesmaids Miss Pamela Thoren and Miss Christine Thoren, both of Boone, Iowa, were frocked alike in yellow satin peau, accented with yellow ribbon.

Carl Elmborg of Wichita, Kan., served his brother as best man and the groomsmen and ushers were Jack Haller of Blue Rapids, Kan.; Richard Elmborg of Beatrice; Paul Thoren and Kenneth Anderson.

The bride appeared in a gown of white pearl-embroidered lace over white satin peau. Designed in the Empire mode the long-sleeved bodice, fashioned with a ring collar, was smoothly fitted above the long, A-line skirt. A coif of lace and pearls over satin hid in place her train-length veil, and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses.

Mr. Elmborg and his bride will reside in Blue Rapids, Kan.

The bride was graduated from Bethany College in Lindsborg, Kan., and received her Master's degree in education from the University of Nebraska. Mr. Elmborg also was graduated from Bethany College, and received his law degree from the New York University School of Law.

DEAR ABBY: Nell, a very dear friend of mine, 63, recently lost her husband. Nell has a well-to-do aunt (85) who invited her to come and live with her and be her companion. Auntie lives in a beautiful apartment with a full-time housekeeper. Auntie has a daughter living with her. The daughter is 60 and also widowed. Auntie and Daughter can't be in the same room for 20 minutes without fighting.

Well, Nell moved in with Auntie and things were going splendidly until Daughter fired the housekeeper and informed Nell that SHE was to be the housekeeper!

Now poor Nell is breaking her back over there with all the work in addition to being referee of Auntie and Daughter. Nell is rather on the timid side and has asked me to help her get out of that situation without getting Auntie angry with her. (Nell is not gay.)

I am considering playing "sick" and sending for Nell to "nurse" me for a few weeks, after which she can tell Auntie she is not returning.

My husband says if I try to pull a stunt like that I am out of my mind. What do you think?

NELL'S BEST FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: I'm with your husband. Tell Nell to remind Auntie that she was invited to be a "companion" not a housekeeper, and since the picture has changed, she's leaving.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

Some endplays are sure to work, but there are others that will produce the desired result only if declarer gauges the location of the unseen cards with complete precision. This last type of endplay is difficult to bring off, and declarer is well advised to look for a simpler method of play if possible.

For example, assume that in this hand declarer wins the king of hearts with the ace and plays the A-K and another spade. West wins and temporarily escapes the endplay by leading the queen of hearts, which South ruffs.

Declarer has no way of cashing the jack of hearts, but just the same he can make the contract if he reads the situation correctly. He cashes all his trumps, leaving himself with the K-7 of diamonds and A-Q of clubs.

No matter how West discards, South can win two of the last four tricks if—and this is a big if—he does the right thing. Thus, if West comes down to two diamonds and two clubs.

clubs, South can endplay him by leading the A-Q of clubs. If West retains three cards in one of the minor suits, South makes the contract by simply playing the other minor suit.

However, there is some danger that South may go wrong in the endplay position, depending on how West elects to discard, and it is for this reason that declarer should adopt an altogether different line of play—one that requires no guessing whatsoever.

South simply ducks the king of hearts on the opening lead!

West now finds himself endplayed in four suits and South has no problem thereafter. Regardless of which suit West elects to return at trick two, South, who started with nine tricks, acquires a tenth in that suit. A heart continuation permits the A-J to score; any other lead automatically hands South trick number ten.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

Some endplays are sure to work, but there are others that will produce the desired result only if declarer gauges the location of the unseen cards with complete precision. This last type of endplay is difficult to bring off, and declarer is well advised to look for a simpler method of play if possible.

For example, assume that in this hand declarer wins the king of hearts with the ace and plays the A-K and another spade. West wins and temporarily escapes the endplay by leading the queen of hearts, which South ruffs.

Declarer has no way of cashing the jack of hearts, but just the same he can make the contract if he reads the situation correctly. He cashes all his trumps, leaving himself with the K-7 of diamonds and A-Q of clubs.

No matter how West discards, South can win two of the last four tricks if—and this is a big if—he does the right thing. Thus, if West comes down to two diamonds and two clubs, South can endplay him by leading the A-Q of clubs. If West retains three cards in one of the minor suits, South makes the contract by simply playing the other minor suit.

However, there is some danger that South may go wrong in the endplay position, depending on how West elects to discard, and it is for this reason that declarer should adopt an altogether different line of play—one that requires no guessing whatsoever.

South simply ducks the king of hearts on the opening lead!

West now finds himself endplayed in four suits and South has no problem thereafter. Regardless of which suit West elects to return at trick two, South, who started with nine tricks, acquires a tenth in that suit. A heart continuation permits the A-J to score; any other lead automatically hands South stamp, addressed envelope.

Causes Of Attica Uprising Eyed

By STEVEN LEVINE

Beyond the pathos and terror, the sheer bizarre, of the event itself, the importance of the five-day Attica state prison uprising in New York last week lies in the politics that motivated it, and that, a posteriori, surround it.

What actually happened, of course, is still being sifted, and I seriously doubt, due to the conflicting interests of those doing the sifting, that an authoritative chronicle can be expected shortly.

What causes such a minor revolution to transpire is not so hard to understand, if one can look around one's carefully nurtured prejudices.

There are, first of all, the long-standing grievances of prison life; the bad physical conditions, the absence of substantive rehabilitation, the barbarous conduct of that special breed recruited to work in such places.

Little Resemblance

But in and of themselves these evils are unable to sustain an uprising of the duration and intensity of that at Attica. Indeed, the conventional prison riot bears little resemblance to what has just been witnessed.

Prisons are not really places for sinners so much as for those sinned against. This is not bleeding heart liberalism. It is economics.

The capitalist momentum inevitably produces sizable numbers of social outcasts, people who, for arbitrarily determined reasons of race and education, are unable to compete in the contest for the favors of state capital, becoming its marginal work force, taking up its inflationary slack. Unlike the enormous theft, a referee to keep us all from harming one another. But the rising consciousness of minority peoples in general, and particularly those held where the contradictions are most obvious, over the past few years has done violence to those nonsensical notions.

The disproportionate representation of poor and/or minority inmates in the prison make-up, the absolute failure of even the most elementary prison reforms make it obvious. The penal system as it is now administered is not only not humanitarian, from the point of view of the maintenance of societal order, it is impractical. The brutalizing effects of its oppressiveness only raise the level of violence in the nation at large.

Its real ethos is projective. As Karl Menninger suggests, it relaxes our own guilt feelings; keeps intact the separation of "us" from "them," a separation indispensable both to the puritan ethic and capitalism.

It is a separation that also bonds the wretched of the earth together and makes them, wherever they are contained, explosively cohesive.

Official Footwork

The official footwork since the assault tends to support these contentions. From White House level down, a massive propaganda effort has been mounted to observe the situation.

knows what he's talking about. What do you say?"

Answer: — Stop worrying. It gives him something to think about and inflates his ego to feel he's operating in high finance. People who listen to stock market advice always do so at their own risk. If age teaches anything, it teaches us to beware of those who promise an easy buck. And who knows? It's just possible your husband's amateurish advice is as good as that of many brokers. When I think of some of the lousy advice experienced brokers have given me, I might as well have listened to a fertilizer salesman.

Answer: — The practice of giving watches as retirement gifts began early this century when the Railroad Retirement Act went into effect and retirement began getting official recognition. Because railroad personnel in the old days used to covet fine timepieces, a gold watch became a popular and traditional gift. While you may not value the watch given you, many retiring employees still find this form of department memento very acceptable.

Other popular retirement gifts today are sets of luggage, outboard motors, and jet plane tickets.

Question: — "Whoever started the tradition of giving gold watches to retirees? It seems pretty silly, considering that time isn't really important to a fellow when he retires. My company has just given me a fancy imported watch with solid gold case which must have cost $200. I'd sell it quick if they'd have left off the engraved inscription 'In commemoration of 40 years of service b l a h - b l a h ,'" that reduces its resale value."

Answer: — The practice of giving watches as retirement gifts began early this century when the Railroad Retirement Act went into effect and you say?"

Answer: — While you're dreaming about the old days don't forget the 14-hour working day, wages of $5 a day — if you were lucky, shoveling coal in the furnace, outdoor plumbing, flat tires every time you went 20 miles from home, and epidemics of flu, diphtheria, smallpox and pneumonia. If you compare yesterday and today objectively I think you'll come to the conclusion you're living in an era infinitely better than yesterday.

fraud and murder perpetrated by the ruling classes, having no access to big rip-offs like the oil depletion allowance or our foreign policy, they do their competing privatistically, and the entire system of criminal justice in America exists to keep them from doing it efficiently enough to become an economic threat.

It is, understatedly, no accident that the Attica rebels were non-white. Attica is there and they are in it for only incidental reasons other than the opposition of their communities.

Nonsensical Notions

For a certain number of years society at large, including most especially the prisoners themselves, has been sold the nonsense that justice exists here, and that it acts as Rockefeller's remarks are most revealing. He lays the blame for the whole business to "The highly organized revolutionary tactics of militants . . ." In effect, outside agitators. At the national governors' conference Ronald Reagan espoused similar doctrine.

Far more dramatic is the patent fabrication of an inmate bloodbath by New York State Commissioner of Corrections Russell Oswald. Oswald alleged that the nine hostages who died in the encounter were knifed by inmates, while coroner's reports confirm that they were shot in the indiscriminate firing of law officers in what amounts to a cold-blooded massacre. This lie is not merely a cover for police incompetence. It is consistent with the Rockefeller line that the convicts were crazed sub-humans egged on by calculating leftist politicos, and that they got what they deserved or more. This rationale mysteriously appears whenever poor people start to raise trouble.

Whatever the conduct of the Attica rebels — I'm sure much of it was appalling — the indictments that won't be handed down would deal with far greater crimes, and they would go not to individuals, but rather to institutions, to a broader politic of crime and of punishment in which the latter is administered by the perpetrators of the former.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:Stock Market Is Husband's Favorite Topic

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: — "What can you do about a husband who's become a big 'blowhard' about the stock market? John never made much money as a fertilizer salesman, but since retiring has invested $2,500 of our savings, buying a few shares of some 20 different stocks. The stock market has become his favorite topic and he likes to give people the impression he's made a lot of money. He loves to give out 'inside information' on various stocks. I tell him he could get in trouble giving people tips and making it sound like he knows what he's talking about. What do you say?"

Answer: — Stop worrying. It gives him something to think about and inflates his ego to feel he's operating in high finance. People who listen to stock market advice always do so at their own risk. If age teaches anything, it teaches us to beware of those who promise an easy buck. And who knows? It's just possible you husband's amateurish advice is as good as that of many brokers. When I think of some of the lousy advice experienced brokers have given me, I might as well have listened to a fertilizer salesman.

It is a beautiful afternoon, and Ken and Monica might have gone for a ride in the country. But they've come to the hospital to visit a classmate.

It isn't always a "fun" thing to visit someone in the hospital, to call on an elderly aunt, or to take a gift to a shut-in. But usually you feel better when you do.

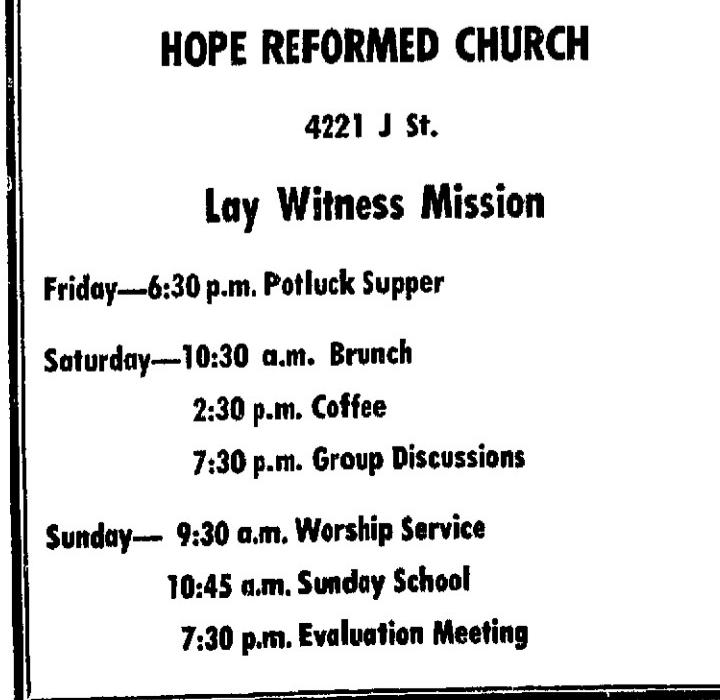

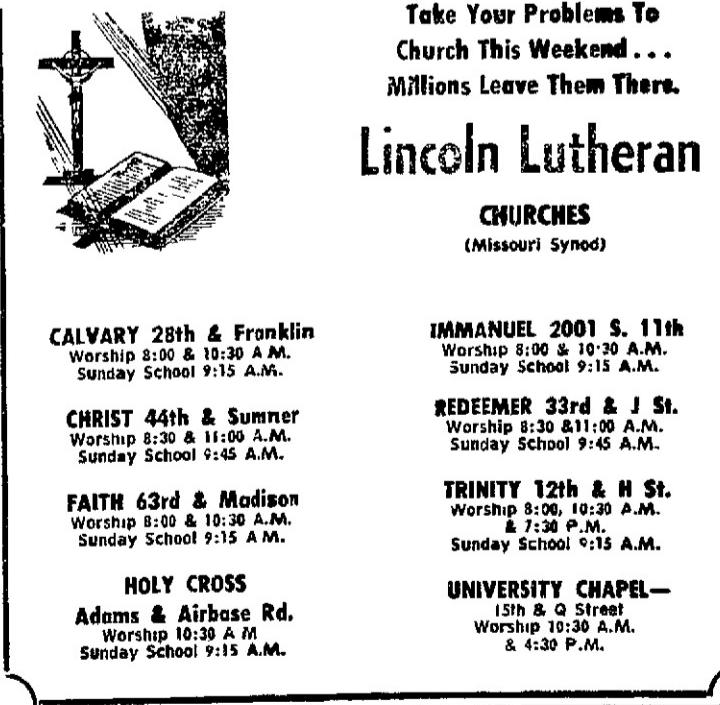

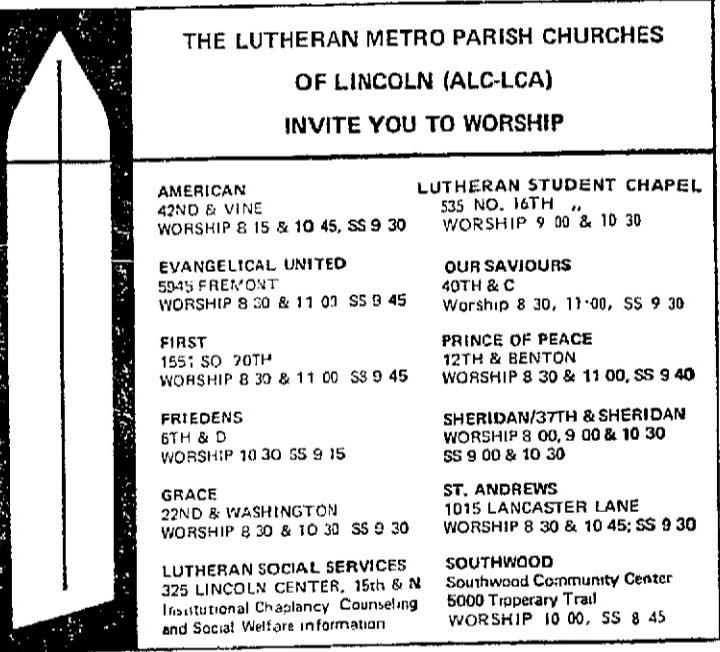

This is a "hurry up" world we're living in. We tell ourselves that there isn't time for the little kindnesses. There isn't time for a lot of things — like, maybe, going to church.

Who are we kidding? Ourselves, perhaps?

'Positive Changes' Are Taking Place In Treatment For Problem Drinkers

Lincoln General Hospital trustees were told Friday that "positive changes" are taking place in the operation of the hospital's chemical dependency unit.

Assistant Administrator Dave Henry said the unit has been treating more community citizens with early drinking problems and fewer transients who have had a long history of alcoholism.

"We're getting to the patients earlier," Henry said, adding that fact alone greatly increases chances for recovery.

"That's our goal," he noted.

Henry said 19 persons have completed in-patient treatments and are now involved in a two-year out-patient program that involves weekly counseling sessions and Alcoholics Anonymous activities.

One of the strengths, Henry said, has been the willingness of other family members to participate in the program's follow-up activities.

As of Friday, Henry said, the unit had 12 patients, most with alcohol-related problems. There have been drug dependency patients treated, as well, he said, and they included those with problems related to abuse of prescription drugs.

The program is not designed to treat hard-drug users, he said.

Henry also said, on a related matter, that the hospital has withdrawn an original application and is reapplying for a federal developmental grant for the unit.

If approved, it would mean an award of funds next June, he said.

The application is going to the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, formerly a division of the National Institutes of Mental Health.

Henry also noted the hospital is taking steps to insure cooperative efforts with other community interests, including agencies such as the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism, to "establish a community plan on alcoholism."

In action at the meeting, the hospital's trustees approved addition of two associate members to the staff — Dr. Allen R. Hohensee in general practice and Dr. William G. Lundak in radiology.

London (D) — Doctors attending this week's world conference on smoking and health scored one black mark: A cigarette burn on the $36,000 carpet at Lancaster House, an architectural treasure used for official receptions.

The cigarette trouble began just before the 400 delegates from 22 countries trekked into the reception room. Lord Aberdare, minister of state at the Health Ministry and host of the affair, was horrified to see containers of cigarettes on every table, the usual hospitable practice at British receptions.

"These people are all opposed to smoking," the lord told the waiters, and the cigarettes were hastily removed. The ashtrays stayed, but to no avail.

One unidentified doctor lit up, despite disgruntled glances from his fellow antismokers, and then stubbed out the butt on the carpet.

State Patrolman Is Credited With Saving Boy's Life

State Patrol Supt. Col. James Kruger announced Friday that patrolman Phillip Svoboda has been awarded the meritorious service citation.

The suggestion included:

1. Tuition charges at all technical community colleges after July 1, 1973 should be uniform throughout the state.

Out-of-area students should be charged the same amount as in-the-area students.

2. The State Board should use state and federal funds to compensate schools that offer courses which involve excessive equipment and supplies.

3. Facilities belonging to a four-year college or the university may be contracted for by the Technical Community College Area.

4. Opposition to the formation

Board Of Colleges Picks Mrs. Dorothy Beavers

The State Board of Technical Community Colleges at its first meeting Friday elected Mrs. Dorothy Beavers of the Omaha Technical Community College as its temporary chairman.

Five of the board's members were present at the meeting which discussed without action the implementation of LB759 passed by the 1971 Legislative session.

A representative for the Nebraska Board of Vocational Education was not present, because the board was unable to agree on a representative. The vote to choose a representative was deadlocked at 4-4 after the board's last meeting.

The Board of Vocational Education does not meet again until October.

The suggestions included:

1. Tuition charges at all technical community colleges after July 1, 1973 should be uniform throughout the state. Out-of-area students should be charged the same amount as in-the-area students.

2. The State Board should use state and federal funds to compensate schools that offer courses which involve excessive equipment and supplies.

3. Facilities belonging to a four-year college or the university may be contracted for by the Technical Community College Area.

4. Opposition to the formation

State Patrolman Is Credited With Saving Boy's Life

State Patrol Supt. Col. James Kruger announced Friday that patrolman Phillip Svoboda has been awarded the meritorious service citation.

Svoboda was cited for applying mouth to mouth resuscitation to a four-year-old child who had stopped breathing and is credited with saving the boy's life.

Kruger also announced that E. E. Folkers has been promoted from corporal to sergeant and R. W. Long has been promoted from trooper to corporal.

Both patrolmen are assigned to Grand Island.

Feiling Appointed

Hastings — Lawrence Feiling of Hastings, recently retired as a member of the Nebraska State Patrol, has been appointed chairman of the Adams County Democratic Committee. He succeeds Robert Boe, who resigned.

Although he admits that "it doesn't differ a whole lot from what you have now," Duis thinks it would work better than no-fault.

In addition, Duis disagreed with previous testimony saying that perhaps a standard federal insurance form would help solve the auto insurance dilemma.

Dr. Gene Harding, director of the project at UNL, said that of 50 students who began the training, 32 completed it. Most will be working in and around Lincoln but some have been assigned to communities as distant as Niobrara and Waithill.

While grain alcohol blended gasoline is possible, he said, under present conditions the performance of such a blend in automobiles would not be satisfactory to the consumers.

In a free market the customer has a choice and I don't feel he'll use alcohol if he has a choice," Nohr, an employee of Continental Oil Co., said.

Lewis, however, said the technical problems could be overcome if all sectors of the industry wanted them solved.

He also noted frequent reports that the world's oil and gasoline reserves are steadily diminishing and that prices for these products are, and will continue, to increase.

"If this is true, what we should be doing is joining forces instead of being opposing forces," Lewis said. "I acknowledge the problems, but I'm saying they could be overcome."

Committee member Ray Ratcliff of York presented a proposal for a one year program to road test automobiles using alcohol blended gasoline.

He said State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher and State Roads Department Director Thomas Doyle have already agreed to allow vehicles from their departments to be used in the program.

Dual Auto Insurance Proposal Offered

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Herbert Duis of Gothenburg Friday presented his dual auto insurance policy proposal, which he said will "simplify" the insurance maze, to the Legislature's Auto Insurance Study Committee.

Intended as an alternative to no-fault insurance, Duis' idea is to divide the current policy structure into two policies, one on the driver and one on the car.

Sen. Lewis Will Discuss Grain Alcohol Program

State Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook said Friday he will go to Washington, D.C. Later this year for a private conference with U.S. Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., on Nebraska's grain alcohol research program.

Lewis said he was invited to meet with Talmadge three weeks ago when Talmadge and Sens. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., were in McCook for a Senate subcommittee hearing on rural development.

Talmadge is chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee.

Equipment Thefts From Aircrafts Bring Warning

The State Department of Aeronautics Friday issued a warning to all aircraft owners in the state regarding aircraft equipment thefts which it says are the work of professionals.

Two aircraft hangars at Minden were broken into recently and one plane was stripped of all radio equipment.

The Department recommended that security precautions be increased.

"The insurance companies are in the business of trying to pay dividends to stockholders, and I have my doubts whether they can do this under no-fault."

The committee, which on previous occasions has heard testimony from Insurance Director Samuel Van Pelt favoring some forms of no-fault, was told according to Duis that the cost estimates which have been given are "inconsequential."

Duis, himself an insurance broker, said he wondered how many people realize just what the no-fault concept entails.

"I don't think if people understand it, they would want to deny responsibility for an accident or pain and suffering benefits. No person should be disallowed the right to adjudication," he said.

"Why have fault in any type of liability then? Why just the automobile? The only reason I've heard is because there are more of them. It's not possible for a car to cause an accident without a driver."

'Simplification' Needed

What is needed, Duis said, is not no-fault but a simplification of insurance.

"Policies are written in such a way now that an Omaha attorney couldn't figure them out," he said.

This simplification could be accomplished using a two policy system, he said.

Under his plan, one policy would cover the driver and passengers' medical payments, wage loss and other expenses. The other would include collision, comprehensive and fire and theft.

Dr. Gene Harding, director of the project at UNL, said that of 50 students who began the training, 32 completed it. Most will be working in and around Lincoln but some have been assigned to communities as distant as Niobrara and Waithill.

Two Major Prison Reform Financing Plans Proposed

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Two major prison reform financing plans were proposed Friday by state senators.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said the Legislature should go to the people with a special issue ballot proposal authorizing senators to expend a minimum of $30 million to construct a new system of modern institutions.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said he is drafting a bill for the 1972 Legislature which would institute a statewide lottery with proceeds going into a prison reform and rehabilitation fund.

Voter Approval Urged
The Legislature will never be willing to spend the necessary funds to modernize Nebraska's penal system without authorization from the voters, Carpenter said.

"We never do anything; we just talk about it," he said. "We're always too worried about the dollar."

The proposals were voiced at a legislative study committee hearing on law enforcement chaired by Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln.

The committee gave 6-0 approval to a motion directing that legislation be drafted to appropriate not more than $20,000 in state tax money for preparation of a comprehensive prison reform plan.

The bill would be submitted to the 1972 session for its consideration.

Federal Funds Available

Sen. Walter Epke of York, who presented the motion, said the state funds would be used along with federal funding to draw such a plan.

Walter Radcliffe, the committee's research assistant, said he has been assured that "a great deal of federal funding would be available" for such a project.

Prison reform is "extremely urgent," particularly in view of the recent events at Attica, Luedtke said, "and Nebraska, at least, is trying to do something."

Penal Complex Warden

Charles Wolff cautioned senators to determine program needs before they proceed to build new institutions.

The big problem will be "selling the Legislature on the need" without some favorable expression from the voters, Carpenter said.

If the state moves toward one or more medium security facilities, he said, buildings at defunct private colleges in Scottsbluff and Beatrice might be used. Another such facility may also be available in Wahoo, he noted.

The proposed comprehensive plan should call for staged development of needed facilities, Radcliffe said.

Kilgore Named Nebraska Pastor

The Rev. John R. Kilgore has been appointed pastor of the Wallace, Elsie and Grinnon pastoral charge of the United Methodist Church. The appointment, effective Sept. 28, was made by Bishop Noah W. Moore Jr., resident bishop of the denomination in Nebraska.

The Rev. Mr. Kilgore is transferring to Nebraska Conference from the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference where he served two churches in Philadelphia.

Lincolnites will be asked to support the UNICEF Program during door-to-door solicitations on Halloween, Mrs. Edith Svoboda of the Lincoln Fellowship of Churches, has announced.

Last year, 41 groups from several Lincoln churches collected $3,150 for the United Nations' Children Fund, Mrs. Svoboda said.

Authorized collectors will be wearing a large orange identification tag and carrying the official UNICEF carton, distributed by Lincoln Fellowship of Churches.

'Will Be Missed'

"The hospital will be missed and long remembered.

Thousands of children have been rehabilitated to serve useful lives through treatment received there."

The hospital which has provided more than 15,000 days of care in the last year, according to LaMontia, will discontinue admissions or readmissions as of Oct. 15.

LaMontia said hospitalization for orthopedically handicapped children who reside in western Nebraska will be purchased by Services for crippled children from Scottsbluff hospitals.

For central Nebraska residents it will be purchased from Hastings, Grand Island, Kearney and North Platte hospitals.

Lincoln area residents will receive services from Lincoln hospitals, and for northeastern Nebraskans services will be purchased from the University Hospital.

30% Increase In Welfare Costs Told

Nebraska welfare costs increased 30% in the last fiscal year, the State Welfare Department said Friday.

The state in fiscal 1970-71 spent $68,887,838 on public assistance, including aid to the aged, blind, disabled and dependent children. The figures also included medical payments to recipients in all categories and medicare premiums for elderly welfare recipients.

The figure for the 1969-70 fiscal year was $52,795,558.

The average monthly number of welfare recipients in Nebraska during 1970-71 was 57,588, compared with 48,862 in 1969-70.

Surveys show that

4 out of 5 standout lawns are fed in the Fall!

THREE independent surveys taken last spring revealed that 4 out of 5 standout lawns were fed the previous Fall. The findings were not surprising, since Fall is the very best time of year to improve a lawn. It's the one time when Nature puts all the odds in your favor—temperature, moisture and the tendency of grass to send out new side shoots and roots in Fall.

The best thing you can do to take advantage of this unique time of year is to fertilize with Scotts TURF BUILDER. Because of its patented Trionized bonding Turf Builder doesn't cause the spindly surge growth that means extra mowing. Instead, it releases its nutrients as the grass needs them, which greatly stimulates fall development of new roots and side shoots.

The results are most rewarding. Your lawn grows thicker, greener and sturdier. It retains its deep green color longer in the Fall—and greens up earlier next spring too. Turf Builder is available in three convenient sizes:

5,000 sq ft bag (22 lbs) 5.45;
10,000 sq ft bag (44 lbs.) 9.95;

Graham, who is responsible for the specialized care the children receive, said he wishes to assure all persons concerned that the same high quality of care that has been provided for physically handicapped children will continue to be provided by alternate arrangements.

LaMontia said the department is currently in the process of determining who will occupy the building when it is finally vacated.

The prime candidates, he said, are the division of visual impairments and the division of mental retardation. The east wing will remain as office and clinic space for crippled children services.

Speaking of the service the hospital has provided, LaMontia said it "has been an institution of long and commendable service. Most of this service was provided by specially trained doctors and ancillary personnel with minimal or no remuneration who were dedicated to serving handicapped children."

Aggies Accustomed To Facing Top-Rated Teams

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Playing No. 1-ranked football teams is nothing new to seniors on the Texas A & M squad that will visit Memorial Stadium Saturday afternoon for a 1:30 p.m. kickoff with defending national champion Nebraska, ranked first for the second straight week by both The Associated Press and United Press International.

This is the fourth game in three years against a No. 1-ranked outfit for the Aggie seniors, who were sophomores when A & M bowed to Nebraska, 14-0, at Memorial Stadium in 1969.

The outcome of those three previous encounters with top-ranked teams was something that would gain little more than mere mention in a letter to the folks.

No. 1-ranked Texas blasted them, 49-12, in 1969. Ohio State, rated No. 1 early in the 1970 season, shelled the Aggies, 56-13, and later in the 1970 season when Texas had gained the No. 1 spot, the Longhorns romped, 52-14.

The oddsmakers aren't picking coach Bob Devaney's Huskers to win by those whopping margins, but Nebraska is favored by four touchdowns, a figure that Devaney doesn't necessarily agree with.

"Texas A & M has some fine football players and they're a team that can come up with a good game any week," he declares. "Just because they played a bad game last week doesn't mean you can count on them playing another bad one this week."

The bad game reference is to last week's 37-0 shellacking of the Aggies by LSU, a team that lost by 20-18 to virtually the same A & M aggregation a year ago.

A & M has 20 of 22 starters returning from a year ago.

The most feared Aggie is Lex James, a 6-0, 184-pound quarterback from Houston, who Devaney calls "a fine rollout quarterback, who would just as soon run as throw."

In the first two games (A & M defeated Wichita by 41-7 in its opener), James has completed 16 of 35 passes for 222 yards. And he has gained 71 yards on the ground in 25 carries, but he also has been sacked for losses totaling 56 yards, giving him a net rushing total of only six yards in 25 carries.

The job of containing James falls primarily on Husker ends Willie Harper, an all-American candidate, and John Adkins.

These two are a part of the NU Black Shirt gang that has given up only one TD in each of the first two victories, 34-7 over Oregon and 35-7 over Minnesota.

James has shown no preference for a single receiver in the first two games, having thrown four times each to Rick Spencer, Joey Herr, who did not make the trip because of an injury, and Robert Murski.

The leading Aggie rusher is fullback Doug Neill with 14 carries for 65 yards, far below the pace being set on the Husker squad by I-back Jeff Kinney, who has 203 yards in 38 carries.

Fullback Bill Olds with 79 and reserve I-back Gary Dixon also top the Aggie leader for the Huskers.

And Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers has caught twice as many passes as any of the A & Mers with eight, three of them last week for touchdowns, and 157 yards.

Loser Always Blanked

The loser in the three previous meetings between Nebraska and Texas A & M has failed to score with the Huskers winning 13-0 in 1930 and 14-0 in 1969 and A & M winning 27-0 in 1955.

Comparable In Size

Nebraska and Texas A & M compare favorably in the weight department with the Aggies' offensive line from tackle to tackle averaging 234 pounds. The Huskers' 237.

On defense, Texas A & M averages 227 up front, Nebraska 228.

NU President Recalls Alma Mater A & M Upset

Some observers may be taking lightly the football test Nebraska's top-ranked Cornhuskers will be receiving from Texas A&M Saturday, but Nebraska President D. B. (Woody) Varner, an A&M alumnus, isn't one of them.

"Over the years A&M has a reputation for coming up with upsets," cautions Varner, who graduated in 1940 as A&M's basketball captain and valedictorian, and who became Nebraska's administrative chief 20 months ago.

"I'll never forget when I was vice president at Michigan State in 1958," Varner recalls. "We were one of the highest ranked teams in the country and A&M came up to East Lansing without the slightest chance in the world to win."

"Well, my sense of humor almost did me in. I wore my Aggie letter sweater to the press box and sat and watched A&M pull off one of the biggest upsets of the year (9-7)."

"I just hope Nebraska doesn't take this game to lightly. I know I don't treat it lightly."

20-Game String Snapped

When Texas A & M was shut out last week by LSU, it snapped a 20-game string for the Aggies, who hadn't been blanked since Nebraska did it, 14-0, in the 1969 game in Lincoln.

Wichita Coach Picks A&M

Hardly anyone is picking Texas A & M to win Saturday's contest with Nebraska, but Wichita State coach Bob Seaman did after the Aggies had whipped his young squad, 41-7, two weeks ago.

"Texas A & M has a fine football team," he said. "When they beat Nebraska in a few weeks, I'll feel much better about tonight."

No More Big Plays

Texas A & M coach Gene Stallings removed one sign from the Aggies' dressing room prior to the 1971 season, one that read, "Make the Big Play."

"We were waiting for five or six big plays and forgetting about the other 75-80 plays," he explains. "This year, every play is a big play."

When Texas A & M middle guard Van Odom was asked what he did about his wardrobe last season when his weight varied by 30 pounds, he replied, "You either wear them baggy or you wear them tight."

Either Baggy Or Tight

The 50 bands attending today's annual Band Day game will join in a halftime salute to non-football No. 1s in the State of Nebraska.

These include recognition that NU was the first place in the nation to hold a High School Band Day in connection with the football season.

The band also will salute Nebraska firsts in education, agriculture, health and the arts. To carry out the theme, the massed bands will play such tunes as "A Lot of Livin' to Do," "How the West Was Won," "Symbol of Honor," "His Honor," and "Bugler's Holiday."

Buffs Eye Another Upset

The Colorado Buffaloes are keeping their fingers crossed that the only lucky buckeyes Saturday will be the those in the hands of the Tennessee Volunteers.

The dictionary defines a buckeye as a large, nut-like seed, which is what the Tennessee players all received this week from 10-year-old Richard Buttrey of Nashville.

"Last year I sent you buckeyes the week after the Auburn game," he wrote Coach Bill Battle. "You didn't lose another game. I thought I'd better get them in early this season."

Fifth-ranked Auburn faces ninth-ranked Tennessee in Knoxville, one of two college football games matching members of The Associated Press Top Ten. The other pairs No. 10 Colorado with the Ohio State Buckeyes — dictionary definition: No. 6 — in Columbus, Ohio.

Elsewhere, top-ranked Nebraska entertains Texas A&M, runner-up Notre Dame tries to win at Purdue for the first time since 1961, No. 3 Texas hosts Texas Tech in a Southwest Conference opener, fourth-ranked Michigan is at home against UCLA, No. 7 Arkansas meets Tulsa in Fayetteville, Ark., and eighth-ranked Alabama visits Florida.

In Knoxville, it will be Auburn's dynamic passing attack against Tennessee's ball control and strong running game.

"Pat Sullivan and Terry Beasley constitute the finest passing combination seen in the Southeastern Conference, and maybe the nation, in several years," says Gary Wyant, who coaches the Vols' secondary.

"To have a chance against them we must contain Sullivan and keep him pulled up so he can't throw on the natural rhythm he's used to. And, of course, we must have good coverage in the secondary."

The Dodgers got their first run in the fourth when Willie Davis hit his 10th homer of the season over the right-field fence. They got the other run in the seventh when Davis singled, moved to third on a single by Richie Allen and scored on a doubleplay grounder by Manny Mota.

Atlanta's Al Downing became a 20-game winner for the first time in his career, shutting out the Atlanta Braves 2-0 on eight hits Friday and keeping alive the Los Angeles Dodgers' pennant hopes in the National League's West Division.

Downing, who posted his previous high of 14 victories in 1967, was in trouble only in the eighth inning. He gave up a leadoff single to Felix Millan in the first, but all the other hits he faced until the eighth were two out.

The only walk he gave up loaded the bases in the eighth, following singles by Millan and Hank Aaron. But Downing then got Mike Lum to line into a double play to end the threat.

The Dodgers got their first run in the fourth when Willie Davis hit his 10th homer of the season over the right-field fence. They got the other run in the seventh when Davis singled, moved to third on a single by Richie Allen and scored on a doubleplay grounder by Manny Mota.

Second baseman Millan claimed interference by Davis when he failed to make a play on Allen's grounder. When Millan was unable to make a play, the ball rolled into short right center, allowing Davis to advance to third.

The Spartans, now 3-0, face Lincoln High next week, and the Rockets, who stand 0-3, next meet Pius X.

Thompson's Jaunt Lifts Knights

. . . SOUTHEAST SURPRISES NO. 2 RATED BELLEVUE, 24-20

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Bellevue — Senior halfback Egbert Thompson rambled 19 yards on a power play with 4:56 left to give Lincoln Southeast a 24-20 come-from-behind win over No. 2 rated Bellevue here Friday night.

The victory boosted coach Frank Solich's Knights, rated fifth in the state's Class 'A' rankings, to an unblemished 3-0 while the Chieftains dropped to 2-1.

Thompson's scramble climaxed an 80-yard drive which took nine plays and boosted the Knights into the advantage. Southeast used eight running plays to gain the victory after Bellevue had grabbed a 10-18 advantage with 8:45 remaining.

The Chieftains took that 20-18 lead on the last of three touchdowns by senior fullback Danny Walker — a two-yard power burst.

Although Solich termed Bellevue a "big, strong team," he said the Knights did a pretty consistent defensive job on the Chieftains.

"I knew when we came back after being down 13-0 we were capable of winning the game," said Solich.

The Chieftains zoomed into that 13-0 lead on the strength of a one-yard plunge by Walker with 2:50 left in the opening quarter and a 60-yard jaunt around left end by the elusive fullback.

The Knights got on the scoreboard with 2:57 left in the half after Fred Thorner recovered a fumble by quarterback Frank Franco on the Bellevue 20.

Three plays later, senior fullback Mark Michel latched on to a 26-yard pass from quarterback Tom Partridge.

Crete Upends Seward

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Seward — Crete football coach Larry Bluhm's cliff-hanging Cardinals pulled off their third straight come-from-behind victory Friday night, upending Seward, 14-8, in the last three minutes of play after Corky Hagemoser's two-yard touchdown run for the home-team Bluejays appeared to have the game salted away for Seward.

Jim Barth, coaching the Seward team for the first time following head coach Jim Jacobs' resignation due to ill health, watched the hard-luck Seward team dominate play through three quarters but fail to score until only 3:22 remained in the game. A third-quarter by Hagemoser on a 42-yard gallop had been nullified by a penalty.

After Hagemoser finally scored from the 2 on a dive over the left side of the Crete line in the fourth quarter, Barth scored the winning TD. A 2-point conversion via a Gammel pass to Tim Edwards tied the score at 8-8.

A minute and a half later, with Seward threatening on the Crete 32, Gammel picked off a pass from Seward quarterback Kelly Krull and ran it back 78 yards for the winning TD. A 2-point conversion failed.

Crete is now 3-0, having come back to beat Syracuse with a third-quarter rally, 25-16, and Plattsburgh 15-14 in the fourth quarter.

The loss was the second heart-breaker in a row for Seward, which lost in similar fashion to Wahoo 9-0 last week, giving up a fourth-quarter field goal and a pass-interception touchdown. The Bluejays beat Central City in their opener, 26-6.

Seward 0 0 0 8-8
Gammel 0 0 0 14-14
Seward — Hagemoser, 2 run; PAT — Hagemoser, rush.

Crete — Snell, 24 pass from Gammel; Gammel, 78 pass interception; PAT — Edwards, pass from Gammel.

Chadron, Doane Gain Rankings

Kansas City — Two Nebraska schools were ranked among the top 20 in the 149-school National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic (NIAA) Division I ball ratings, released here Friday.

Unbeaten Chadron (2-0) has been ranked 11th and Doane (1-0) rates 16th. Hastings (1-1) was one of six teams receiving votes for a top 20 position.

Thompson's Jaunt Lifts Knights

. . . SOUTHEAST SURPRISES NO. 2 RATED BELLEVUE, 24-20

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer

Bellevue — Senior halfback Egbert Thompson rambled 19 yards on a power play with 4:56 left to give Lincoln Southeast a 24-20 come-from-behind win over No. 2 rated Bellevue here Friday night.

The victory boosted coach Frank Solich's Knights, rated fifth in the state's Class 'A' rankings, to an unblemished 3-0 while the Chieftains dropped to 2-1.

Thompson's scramble climaxed an 80-yard drive which took nine plays and boosted the Knights into the advantage. Southeast used eight running plays to gain the victory after Bellevue had grabbed a 20-18 advantage with 8:45 remaining.

The Chieftains took that 20-18 lead on the last of three touchdowns by senior fullback Danny Walker — a two-yard power burst.

Although Solich termed Bellevue a "big, strong team," he said the Knights did a pretty consistent defensive job on the Chieftains.

"I knew when we came back after being down 13-0 we were capable of winning the game," said Solich.

The Chieftains zoomed into that 13-0 lead on the strength of a one-yard plunge by Walker with 2:50 left in the opening quarter and a 60-yard jaunt around left end by the elusive fullback.

The Knights got on the scoreboard with 2:57 left in the half after Fred Thorne recovered a fumble by quarterback Frank Franco on the Bellevue 20.

Three plays later, senior fullback Mark Michel latched on to a 26-yard pass from quarterback Frank Franco on the Bellevue 20.

Although the conversion attempt failed, the Knights came back again after the next Bellevue drive stalled as Michel snared his second scoring pass — this one a 36-yarder from Partridge with just 33 seconds remained before the intermission.

The powerful Bellevue running game (232 yards) gave Southeast trouble all night, but Walker finally errored as he fumbled with seven minutes remaining in the third quarter and it gave the Knights their opportunity to forge in front.

Southeast's Eric Abrams recovered Walker's fumble at the Bellevue 43-yard line and nine plays later senior halfback Brent Jensen scooted 10 yards to propel the Knights to an 18-13 cushion with 3:33 left in the third quarter.

Bellevue marched 65 yards with the ensuing kickoff with Walker blasting over from the two to give the Chieftains a 20-18 advantage.

Hayes Center
Returns To 'D'
After Recount

Hayes Center, which has captured the Class D high school track championship the last four years in succession, will have a chance to defend that title again after all.

Earlier this week the Nebraska School Activities Association, in announcing new boy enrollment figures for the current school year, had Hayes Center in Class C.

Originally, six schools were on the borderline after reporting 59 boys. On the basis of an average over the past three years, Wilcox, Wynot, Lindsay Holy Family and Hayes Center were placed in Class C, with Falls City Sacred Heart and Kearney Catholic in Class D.

Friday Kearney Catholic discovered an error in its count and reported a new total of 60. That moved them up and dropped Hayes Center down again.

Some Ticket Relief in Sight

TICKETLESS STUDENTS TO GET DUCATS NEXT WEEK

There's some relief in sight, but only temporary, for seekers of University of Nebraska football tickets. "We'll be able to accommodate the students who have been without tickets and some general public for the Utah State game next week," says Cornhusker ticket manager Jim Pittenger, noting that Utah State requested only 300 tickets.

"But it's going to get difficult again as we go down the pike. Kansas, Colorado and Iowa State took their full allotment of 3,000 seats," he explains.

Although Saturday's Texas A&M game has been designated as Band Day, which cuts into the number of stadium seats available, Pittenger says the pressures this week won't be much greater than last week.

"One reason is that you have a better idea of what is facing you on Band Day. You know what is coming," he says, referring to the 3,019 stadium seats which will be filled by high school band members Saturday.

Again this week, some 700 University students who bought season tickets will be without them. Increased enrollment and a higher percentage of ticket requests by students created the problem.

The students will be able to get tickets for the remaining games on the home schedule — Utah State, Kansas, Colorado and Iowa State.

"We can't take care of the general public requests for the last three games, however," says Pittenger.

The Colorado game, Oct. 30, is to be nationally televised. This should diminish some of the ticket pressure, although televised games draw near capacity crowds in Lincoln.

Increased enrollment in 1972 could add to the ticket squeeze. Right now, at least, Pittenger doesn't have time to worry about next year. "That's something we'll have to figure out after this season," he says.

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents has asked for a feasibility study on stadium expansion.

The most likely area for expansion would be the south end zone, where 13,749 seats were added in 1964 at a cost of $422,705.

Addition of permanent seats in the north end zone in 1965 and 1966 added 17,838 seats.

The end zone expansion projects were completed for $1,135,209 and the athletic department contributed $162,601 to the completion of the press box which, with its guest seating facility, helped boost the stadium capacity to 67,000.

Revenue bonds floated for the expansion project have now been retired.

Revenue from the 11th game added in 1971 was earmarked for the synthetic surface placed on the playing field last year. The AstroTurf project cost $342,482.

The extra game revenue this season will be used to help fund the relocation and surfacing of the outdoor track.

Game Commission Seeking Fewer Tax Dollars

The State Game Commission Friday decided to ask for a quarter of a million dollars less in state tax funds for next year than was initially approved earlier this month.

The action came in response to a plea from Gov. J. J. Exon that each agency keep its next year's budget requests in line with amounts appropriated for this year.

However, the final general fund support requested in the commission's final budget proposal still represents an increase of $252,257 over this year's general funds support, according to figures supplied by the agency's fiscal agent Jack Hanna.

He said for the current fiscal year, the commission was given $3,975,000 from the general fund.

$4.5 Million Budget

Earlier this month, a special committee of game commissioners approved a budget proposal which called for some $4.5 million from the general fund.

But Director Willard Barbee said, in view of the governor's budgeting wishes, the quarter of a million was pared from that amount. The latest budget request calls for $4,227,000 from the general fund.

Hanna told the commission the cutback was made in the maintenance and operation portion of the overall budget.

On another matter, the commissioner decided that no person would have exclusive rights to use a blind for hunting at the public use area at the west end of Lake McConaughy, commonly called the "firing line," even if he built it.

The action came on a motion offered by Commissioner Francis Hanna of Thedford, but only after other motions for complete closing of the area to hunting or the destruction of privately owned blinds were either defeated by vote or died for lack of a second.

Charges Levelled

Barbee said the matter was brought up because of several charges that some were renting their blinds, which is prohibited on public land.

In other action, the commission was informed of Gov. J. J. Exon's approval of plans for a $240,000 aerospace museum building at Offutt Air Force Base.

A letter signed by the governor was read to the commissioners by director Willard Barbee giving approval to the committee had charged

Exon said he and his advisory committee on the project had reviewed the plans, given approval by the commission last month pending the gubernatorial decision, and agreed with them.

Barbee said, assuming the architect is ready to supply information to bidders, the awarding of a contract could take place in about one month.

Last spring, the commission was scheduled to approve plans for a visitor center at the aerospace museum complex, which is being leased by the state from the federal government.

But at the request of the governor and the advisory committee, the plans were scrapped.

The committee had charged the visitor center concept was not part of the original idea given funding approval by the 1969 Legislature.

They said the Legislature had understood a facility would be built which would include ample room for displays. The visitor center building would not have included exhibit space.

Diplomats Pushing Nebraska Benefits

A "Go Big Red" spirit prevailed at the fourth annual meeting of the Nebraska Diplomats Friday night at the Lincoln Hotel.

"We can make Nebraska number one in every field," Gov. J. J. Exon told the Diplomats, an organization of about 165 of the state's business, professional and civic leaders who have pledged to assist the Department of Economic Development in industrial development.

In order to aid the Diplomat's goal of industrial development, Exon said, a resident of western Nebraska would be appointed to the department by February, 1972. He said he would ask the Legislature to fund six more regional representatives over the next two years.

"They will be your direct line to the department and the rest of state government," he told the Diplomats.

Exon told the audience he saw the role of the state as "one of support for your activities."

"We recognize that one of our greatest potentials lies with those companies already located in Nebraska," he said. "They are among our best salesmen."

To help sell Nebraska as a good place to locate industry, Exon said, the out-of-state advertising program would continue. He said the state had hired the Omaha advertising firm of Holland, Drevets and Reilly to aid in this attempt.

A tape was then played over the public address system that had been created by the Omaha firm for a 60 second radio commercial.

It featured a soft guitar and vocal background while an announcer spoke of the benefits of the state. The tape ended with the announcer saying, "drop a line to the Department of Economic Development and we'll send you a brochure."

The commercial was not the only music at the meeting, however. After the banquet a portion of the Nebraska University pep band marched through the audience, its drums and brass horns blaring songs familiar to N.U. sports fans.

Stan Matzke, director of the Department of Economic Development, talked briefly before Exon delivered his speech.

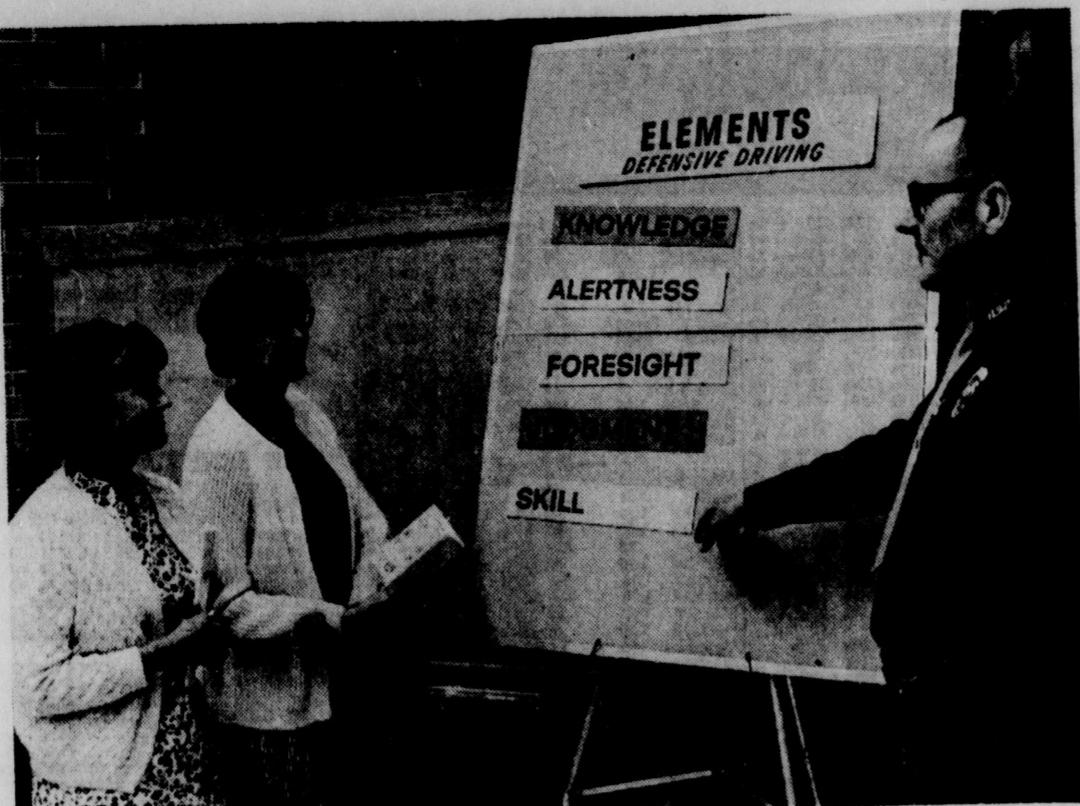

Matzke outlined a number of proposals in which the Diplomats would take a part.

One of his proposals was compiling a list of persons who have moved from Nebraska, but wanted to move back.

"Then when a company that is considering a move to Nebraska and needs engineers, for example, we can show them right where to look," he said.

Exon received the Diplomat's highest honor at the meeting, the title of ambassador-potentiary. A medallion on a red ribbon was placed around his neck by Miss Nebraska, Sally Lou Warner, to signify the honor.

In addition to Exon's elevation in rank, his two administrative assistants, Norman Otto and John Sullivan, were named special envoys for the Nebraska Diplomats. Two former ambassadors in the organization, Robert L. Kriz, of Grand Island, and H. Jack Moore of Hastings, were named ambassadors for making over three personal calls on industrialists outside of Nebraska during the last year.

SPECIAL SAFETY CONFERENCE PLANNED

A special safety conference open to the public, is scheduled for Monday, Sept. 27, from 12:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the Nebraska State Patrol headquarters, 14th and Burnham. Crossings and danger spots in Lincoln, the new bicycle ordinance, and the alcohol problem in relationship to driving are slated for discussion. The conference, with a 50-cent registration fee, is being held in conjunction

Nine Will Serve As Advisors To Fire Marshal

Gov. J. James Exon Friday announced the appointment of 9 members to an advisory committee to the office of the state fire marshal as provided for by LB570.

Kerkmann was stopped by Patrolman John Loder and Gary Becerra Thursday night in a car which had been reported stolen. When Loder asked for his identification, Kerkmann struggled and bit him, Loder said.

The officers said chemical mace failed to subdue the 210-pound Kermann and additional officers had to be called.

Rally Try Fails In Stock Mart

New York (AP) — Stock prices closed slightly lower Friday after the market made an unsuccessful rally attempt. Trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, ahead nearly 6 points early in the session, fell 1.97 points to close at 889.31.

Advances on the New York Stock Exchange, which had held a 2 to 1 lead over declines, wound up even with the losers.

Analysts said the rally was in response to President Nixon's remarks Thursday indicating that the second phase of his anti-inflationary program would not include profit controls. Uncertainty over the contents of the second phase had depressed prices in the previous sessions, they said.

Some second thoughts as to whether Congress would go along with the plan may have triggered the subsequent downturn, according to analysts.

Big Board volume inched ahead to 13.47 million shares from 13.27 million shares Thursday.

RCA, up 3/4 at 37 on a volume of 13.27 million shares, led the Big Board's most-active list for the fourth time this week. Investor interest in the stock has been keen since company announced a week ago that it would quit producing computers.

Aircrafts, oils, and glamour stocks were lower. All other groups were mixed.

The 1,473 issues traded on the Big Board, 674 advanced, and 675 declined. New year lows were reached by 37 issues and highs by 17.

The New York Stock Exchange index of 1,300 common stocks dipped off to 342.6. The American Stock Exchange rose .03 to 335. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index slipped .23 to 98.15.

The Associated Press' stock average of 100 industrial stocks were off .8, gains were off 2.2, and utilities were off .4.

The number of blocks of 10,000 shares traded on the Big Board rose 136 from a revised total Thursday. The largest block was 162,000 shares of Caterpillar Tractor, which traded at 50. The stock closed off .50 at 50.

Of the 1,087 issues traded on the American Stock Exchange, 419 advanced, and 363 declined. Armetex volume declined to 2.9 million shares from 3.05 million shares.

The most active Amex issue was House of Fabric, up 1/2 at 39 on a volume of 90,300 shares.

Corporate and government bonds were higher.

Curtis Hopes Draft Can Be Terminated

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Carl Curtis Friday said the military draft "should not be a permanent fixture" in American society and he hopes it has been extended for the last time.

Curtis voted to extend the draft system until 1973 "because the needs of my country demanded it," he told a Union College convocation.

The draft is needed as long as the Vietnam War is unresolved and American prisoners-of-war are still held in Indochina, he said.

To Study Effects

And, Curtis told students, he wants to see what effect congressional approval of increased military salaries and benefits and an accelerated recruitment program will have on enlistments before he can support elimination of the draft.

"I look forward to the time when it can be terminated," he said.

On other matters, Curtis said he opposes the welfare reform bill approved by the House.

"The House bill is welfare expansion, not reform," he said. It would increase welfare expenditures by $5½ billion in the first year, inaugurate a guaranteed income system and could end up doubling the welfare rolls, he said.

Favors State Control

Curtis said he favors a proposal which would "return welfare to the states," allowing each of them to design and administer their own programs.

The federal government would continue to share costs under the same formula now in operation, he said.

Curtis said President Nixon's economic program has "overwhelming public support," but he expects its second phase to be more difficult than the initial freeze.

Second phase actions "must be tough enough to restrain major increases in wages and prices, but flexible enough so that the economy can grow," the senator said.

Curtis will support reinstitution of an investment tax credit, he said, and he considers the 10% import surtax to be "absolutely necessary."

Reasonable trade regulations and restraints are needed, he said.

Curtis said Nixon's foreign policy has been "most successful" in winding down the Vietnam war and has enjoyed "substantial success" in bringing about a ceasefire in the Mideast.

Curtis said he hopes the President's trip to China can lead to talks "which will permit our Christian missionaries once more not only to enter China but also to carry on their mission unmolested."

Asked about bussing, he told the students he opposes federally-imposed school bussing to achieve racial balance.

While the Constitution forbids racial discrimination, he said, "it is not clear that it commands integration."

Firemen Retain Life Insurance Despite Freeze

By The Associated Press

Gov. J. J. Exon said Friday he has received word that a 1971 legislative act providing life insurance for volunteer firemen doesn't fall under the scope of President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

Exon reported he had received a clearance on the bill, LB750, from the Kansas City regional office of the Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP).

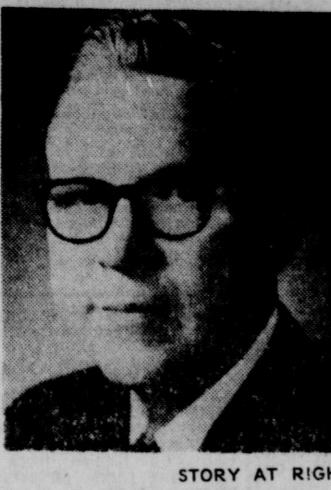

The law provides that a

$2,000 life insurance policy be carried on unpaid volunteer firemen.

The OEP office said the firemen are not obligated to perform their duties, thus the policy is a gratuity and not a compensation, leaving it outside the scope of the freeze.

Muskie said he and Sen.

Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., were introducing legislation which would abolish the ceiling and apply the tax against earned income up to any level.

Muskie Proposes Shifting Social Security Tax Burden

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — Sen.

Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, proposed Friday that the Social Security tax system be overhauled to shift some of the burden from lower income families to the wealthy.

His plan, he said in a speech prepared for delivery here, would mean lower Social Security taxes for 63 million wage earners and higher rates for 8 million others.

At the same time, he said, revenues would be increased so that higher benefits could be paid.

"And this country could then redeem the promise of Social Security that those who have the good fortune to grow old will also have right to a good life instead of a dole."

Under the law now, Social Security coverage is almost universal and all those covered pay on the first dollar of income.

This year the tax rate of 5.2% is applied to the first $7,800 earned and is paid by the employer and worker.

Under the law, the tax base is to go up to $9,000 next year. The rate also will be increased in future years.

Muskie said he and Sen.

Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., were introducing legislation which would abolish the ceiling and apply the tax against earned income up to any level.

Dr. Milton J. Hassel, 55, announced his resignation Friday as president of Kearney State College, a post which he has held since 1961.

In announcing his decision at the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges meeting, Hassel said Kearney State "could profit considerably with new leadership."

He said it would "profit me, as well, to have other professional experiences in my career."

Both in his letter of resignation and after the meeting Hassel declined to say what his future plans are, although he said he is considering several alternatives.

He leaves a faculty and student body of 6,000 students which he called "unexcelled in their talents and potentials."

"I am leaving a fine community which is truly dedicated to Kearney State and to higher education," he said.

The effective date of his resignation is June 30, 1972, and the matter of successor is wide open.

Hassel said he has been considering the resignation over the past two or three years.

Prior to his Kearney post, he was academic dean at Mankato State from 1957-1961 and dean of students at Wayne State from 1947 to 1957. He has Ph.D. from the University of Nebraska and his bachelor's from Kearney State which he graduated from in 1947. He was born in Harlan County.

Washington (AP) — The Agriculture Department announced Friday it will require poultry-processing plants in the island territories of Guam and the Virgin Islands to be federally inspected although nobody knows if any such plants exist.

Other state officers named were Stanley J. Rihane of Thurston, vice-president; Lars Jacobson of Danner, bog, secretary; Dewey L. Brothers of Dix, treasurer; and Leroy H. Hofker of Lincoln, chaplain.

More than 175 association members are attending the three-day convention and training session at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel.

U.S. Sen. Carl Curtis is to be the annual recipient of the association's "dignitary" Bible at a Saturday night banquet.

The Gideons distributed Bibles to hotels, motels, hospitals, institutions and schools.

4 Additional Inspectors To Be Hired

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher said Friday that the hiring of four additional food inspectors has been authorized by Gov. J. James Exon in order to continue the grocery store inspection program.

Kreuscher had said earlier this week that the program would be terminated due to a shortage in funds for additional personnel.

The director said Exon decided the store shelf and sanitary inspection program should be continued and a source of revenue found.

The move, Kreuscher added, would insure both food item and store sanitation inspections will be continued as they have in past years when handled under the federally subsidized meat inspection division.

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:
The nation's airlines promise that by the end of 1973 about 64% of the jetliners will be smokeless.

A million cars will be scrapped this year in West Germany and 1.1 million next year.

Employable welfare recipients in New York City have been put to work cleaning parks.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE Here's How to Work It
One letter simply stands for another in this example. A is used for the three L's X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your name or other letters in your first name. Add one, two, three, or more—subtract 4. If the number is 10, add 5, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you right.
